SOUTH END GROUNDS, Aug. 20.—A mighty hard series for the Boston Doves was started this afternoon when they lined up with Frank Chance's bunch of world's champs. The Cubs have been most unkind to the birds of this city all season and have allowed them but one measly game. That was won in Chicago by Kirb White, and was a surprise for Manager Chance, who never took the local team real seriously.

The many fans who attended the game, urged on by the grand contests the Doves put up against the Dodgers, wanted to see White work this afternoon, for they figured that he would make the best showing of any one of Manager Smith's rattling staff.

A scheduled double-header is on the bill for the Doves to-morrow, and a large crowd is looked for, as the Champs are always a good attraction in Boston.

RED SOX IDLE, STANDING MAY CHANGE SOME

While the Red Sox are swiftly traveling towards St. Louis to-day, the Athletics and the Detroit Tigers will be battling to hold their places ahead of the Boston crew.

The Tigers are scheduled to play two games with Washington, while the Athletics tackle the Cleveland Naps.

No matter how the results of these games come out, the Red Sox cannot possibly regain second place.

If Detroit drops two games to the Senators it will bring them down toward the Red Sox, within a margin of two points, and then the result of the game to-morrow between the Browns and the Red Sox may put the Speed Boys back into second place.

On the other hand should Detroit, by a streak of good luck, win two games to-day from the Senators, they will be tied with the Athletics for first place in the standing, providing the Athletics lose to the Naps, as it would give both teams a percentage of .613.

If Philadelphia wins again it will have a mark of .622, a game out of reach of the Tigers and harder to catch for the Red Sox.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Cleveland, Aug. 20.—The Athletics lined up against the Naps for the second finale of the series this afternoon. Both teams were full of pepper and confidence and there promised to be plenty doing.

The Naps feel that the leaders have nothing on them at this stage of the game and they are anxious to win every game possible from now to the close of the season. Their hopes for the pennant are almost nil but they want to be right up there at the finish just the same.

Mack's pitchers were in fine shape. Three of them warmed up and Mack said any one of the trio would suit him.

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, Aug. 20.—The Tigers, encouraged by getting back into second place, tackled the Washingtons, the first of the Eastern clubs to arrive here, this afternoon. The hard battles Cantillon's men give the Athletics a few days ago in Washington made the Tigers respect them.

Washington's pitchers are in good shape just now and they promised to make things warm for the Tigers, but Jennings's men were feeling fine to-day, and they said they would soon regain the leadership in the American League race.

WILLARD IN AIRSHIP GOES MILE MINUTE

KEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Charles F. Willard of Boston, a pupil of Glen H. Curtiss, made three flights in a Curtiss aeroplane on Hempstead Plains, near Mineola, L. I., today, under almost perfect atmospheric conditions and at one time flew at the rate of a mile a minute.

On the third flight the rudder split and he was forced to descend.

Willard's time was recorded by members of the Aeronautic Society, under whose auspices the flights were held, and it was said by them that it was a world's record for speed. Neither the Wrights, Bleriot, Farnum, Curtiss nor Latham has ever done as well as a mile a minute.

Several thousand people witnessed Willard's flights. More than 200 automobiles, filled with fashionables from New York and the country places in the vicinity of Hempstead and Meadow Creek, gathered at Mineola and most of them followed Willard as he sailed in a great circle around Mineola. Hundreds lined the roofs of houses and barns near the course.

Willard ran the aeroplane on its wheels for 200 yards along the ground, then gave a twist to the rising plane, and the machine soared upward. A shout went up from the crowd gathered about. There was practically no wind and Willard started off at great speed for the Mineola Aeronautic Club. There he swerved southward, and when near Garden City he turned back toward Mineola and descended gracefully.

When it was found that Willard had covered the one and four-fifths miles of his flight in 1 minute and 58 seconds, there were vigorous cheers, but Willard only smiled, and declared that he was going up a second time. This time he reversed the course, going a little farther. The second flight covered these miles in three minutes.

HARRIMAN IS TO HIDE FROM WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Work was begun to-day on the construction of a private telephone system between Arden, N. Y., the country home of E. H. Harriman, and his office in New York, twenty miles away. Imperative orders were given that it must be completed in three days.

The instructions are that Mr. Harriman will remain in seclusion at Arden for some time, but will keep in close touch with business affairs.

Dispatches received to-day from Paris doctors regarding the health of E. H. Harriman indicate that the railroad king is a very sick man.

When Mr. Harriman aboard the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II., reaches lower New York bay next week, he will be transferred from the big vessel to a private yacht and conveyed as far as possible by water toward his home at Arden, N. Y.

A private dispatch had reached these conferees from Mr. Harriman's present physician, giving it in said some definite facts as to his exact condition. They deemed it best, in view of this, to arrange that he should be landed and conveyed home with all possible gentleness and absence of excitement.

The doors of Wall Street, when they heard of this arrangement, professed to believe that Mr. Harriman is a very, very ill man; in fact, that his condition is so critical that he is to be kept out of public sight to avoid giving alarm.

HELD FOR PISTOL ACT.

Frederick A. Darbins, colored, of No. 9 Harwood street, charged with an assault with a revolver with intent to kill Frank O'Brien, eighteen years old, of No. 86 Warrenton street, was held in $1,000 for a hearing next Tuesday by Judge Murray in the Municipal Court to-day.

CIRCLE EARTH IN 43 DAYS IN WORLD RACE

H. L. Whitman and Dr. Rufus K. Noyes, composing the BOSTON AMERICAN westbound team of racers, were due to return to Boston at 3 o'clock this afternoon over the New Haven road, making the circuit of the earth in 42 days 1 hour, having left at 2 p. m. on July 9. This pair reached New York on the Mauretania to-day, the giant Cunard liner cutting hours off the best previous trans-Atlantic record. Whitman will get the New England globe-girdling record.

Cutting off 17 days 3 hours and 1 minute from the old record, the first of the BOSTON AMERICAN world racers, Dr. Rufus Morris, and Peter Cohen, his escort, arrived at the North Station at 8 o'clock this morning, completing the 25,000-mile circuit of the earth.

The second elapsed time of the trip was 43 days 7 hours and 50 minutes, the pair having left Boston at 12.05 a. m. July 8.

Both of the boys were glad to get back home. "There is no place like old Uncle Sam's land," declared Morris as he left his Pullman at the North Station. "but LOSE RACE WITH DEATH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—A score of policemen and laborers raced with death today when John Moran was caught under tons of earth in a cave-in on Stirling place, Brooklyn. They seized shovels and dug Moran out, but he lived only a few minutes.

MOTOR BOAT PIRATES RAID NORTH SHORE

FITZGERALD BACK, OUT FOR MAYOR AND DEFYING MATTHEWS

Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald arrived home to-day from Europe after a month's absence, bringing with him his two daughters, the Misses Rose and Agnes Fitzgerald, who were at school in Belgium.

He declares that he will be a candidate for Mayor and that he has no intention of withdrawing. He will take the stump for Plan 2 of the amended city charter and believes that it will be adopted by the people.

He insists that his integrity as a public official has been impugned by his political enemies and "professional reformers" and that, for the sake of his own reputation and of his family, he will seek vindication at the hands of the people.

Asserting that Nathan Matthews, as a former Mayor of Boston, has treated him unfairly, Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald says he will handle Matthews without gloves at the proper time.

Fine Greeted by Brother.

Declaring that candidates for public office should not be the dictators of a political party, he says he will not attempt to win the control of the Democratic machine.

The ex-Mayor was met by a party of his friends upon the arrival of the Cymric off Boston Light. His brother, ex-Senator Henry S. Fitzgerald, was the first to greet him, and they held a long and animated conversation before the ex-Mayor gave himself up to the newspaper men.

A reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN explained to Mr. Fitzgerald the features of the political situation that have been discussed during his absence abroad, and told him that several of the Democratic leaders have intimated that he does not intend to be a candidate for the Mayoralty.

"You can say for me that I will not withdraw," said the former Mayor. "I will go before the people of Boston feeling confident of my election."

"Do you still favor Plan Two?"

"I most certainly do."

Will Take the Stump.

"Will you take the stump for Plan Two?"

"I certainly shall, and will stay upon the stump from the opening of the fight 'till the close. I am convinced now, more than ever, that the citizens of Boston will select the best man for Mayor regardless of whether he is a Republican or a Democrat, and I am not afraid of that issue."

"Have you anything to say about the controversy between Councilman Goodwin

STRANG IN BUICK CAR WINS FIRST

SPEEDWAY, Indianapolis, Aug. 20.—The first event, the five-mile open, in the auto races here to-day, was won by Strang in a Buick car. Chevrolet, in a Buick car, was second, and Thompson, in a Marion car, was third. Time—6:48.

In the second event, one-mile trials to lower world's track record, free for all, in a Benz car, Barney Oldfield, 43.5, first. A Flat car, driven by Dagalus, 46.8, was second. A Chadwick car, driven by Zuegel, 49:0 3-5, was third.

Four persons are dead to-day as a result of the race meet.

William A. Bourque, one of the contestants in last year's Vanderbilt cup race, and his mechanic, Henry Holcombe, were almost instantly killed when their car, going at a furious pace, crashed into a fence.

Cliff Littrell of Dayton, O., who jumped from a big racing machine on the way to the track, and was run over by the car behind him, died in the Methodist Hospital from his injuries.

Elmer Campion, six years old, was run over and instantly killed at Illinois street and McLean place by an automobile returning from the races.

Woman Badly Injured.

Mrs. Robert Trevisan, who with her husband was the guest of George Van Camp, had her collarbone broken and her scalp cut when Van Camp's steering wheel failed, and the car jumped a curb, crashing against a fence on Pennsylvania avenue. Others in the party were painfully bruised.

That Louis Chevrolet, the famous Buick car driver, is alive is only because of his presence of mind and the expert manipulation of his car, which was directly behind that being driven by Bourque.

Fifteen thousand persons saw Bourque and his mechanic go to their deaths. Bourque and Chevrolet were among the contestants in the 250-mile race. Both started out at a furious pace, and were neck and neck for several miles.

Christie in Freak Racer.

The second day of the speed carnival was opened with the five-mile stripped class race to-day.

Christie in his freak racer was on hand prepared to make a hard fight for the gold-plated auto which has been offered by an automobile manufacturing house for the fastest mile of 1909.

The bodies of Bourque and Holcomb were taken East to-day. Bourque lived in Springfield, Mass., while Holcomb's home was in Granville, Mass.

The speedway owners have announced a twenty-four-hour race to be run on September 24-25, for $5,000 in cash prizes.

NEITHER SIDE LICKED, SAYS GEN. WOOD

SECOND BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS, SOUTH HANOVER, Aug. 20.—Major-General Leonard Wood, Umpire-in-Chief of the war game, said this afternoon:

"Neither side was defeated in the war game, so there will be no official decision as to victory of Reds or Blues as far as I know."

General Wood visited the Second Brigade headquarters to-day with Brigadier-General William A. Pew, each attended by their staffs.

General Wood complimented Colonel William H. Donovan of the Ninth, who was commander of the Second Brigade in the war game, and Major John J. Sullivan, the Lieutenant-Colonel commander of the Ninth in the war, for the splendid work of the Ninth Regiment on its forced march from South Hanson to the final battle at Hanover Four Corners.

Will Invade New York.

"It was remarkable," said General Wood, "how the Massachusetts troops went to the line of fire, covered the ground and kept the regiments together. The twelve-mile march of the Ninth was admirably done.

"Massachusetts should have more cavalry a full squadron. I hope to send the Massachusetts militia to invade New York against the New York troops some time. The next time the Massachusetts boys go into maneuvres they should go lighter equipped, too. I have a particular interest in them because I was raised in Plymouth County."

Then General Wood added with a laugh:

"Maybe it was foolish of me to send Connecticut troops with the Harvard red into Massachusetts against the Yale blue. It was a mix-up, wasn't it?"

Only Army Music.

At that moment the Eight Regiment Fife and Drum Corps, under Drum Major Walter H. Thomas, came up, playing with spirit. General Wood listened with satisfaction. At the close, as Drum Major Thomas saluted, General Wood returned his salute and said:

"That's splendid. That's the only kind of music we ought to have in the army, anyhow."

He congratulated Drum Major Thomas on the skill and appearance of the fife and drum corps, and chatted with that veteran a few minutes about old war times.

Mansion at Manchester Is Looted of Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Property—Family Away.

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, Aug. 20.—Despite the efforts of the Manchester police to keep the matter secret, the news leaked out to-day that the palatial Summer mansion of Mrs. W. Scott Fitz at Smith Point was broken into and robbed this week by members of a gang of motor boat burglars, who landed and escaped, it is believed, in a fleet craft.

The robbers came and went most mysteriously, being seen by none, nor heard by the servants in the house, but they carried away with them thousands of dollars worth of gems, watches, silverware and other valuables.

The burglary occurred on Wednesday night and was reported to Chief Sullivan the following morning. In hopes of apprehending the criminals and fearing to alarm the wealthy Summer colonists in the vicinity, the chief tried to keep the news of the break from the press.

There is no clew to the identity of the robbers, but the revenue authorities are co-operating in the search.

Most of the Fitz family was away at dinner Wednesday evening. When they returned at 11 o'clock they found that the store rooms on the second floor facing the ocean had been ransacked. Dressing tables, bureaus and closets had been searched, jewel boxes opened and a clean haul made.

Investigation showed that entry was probably made by climbing up a porch and opening a screen door that gave access to the second floor from the roof.

Only a few servants were in the house. They heard no suspicious sounds, but as they were on the ground floor the burglars could have worked without arousing them.

The Fitz place at Smith Point is one of the finest in Manchester. Mrs. Fitz is a widow and one of the leading members of the North Shore Summer colony.

STEAMER IS MISSING IN SOUND CRASH

VINEYARD HAVEN, Aug. 20.—After a collision in Long Island Sound early to-day between an unknown steamer and the New Bedford schooner Warren B. Potter, the steamer disappeared in the darkness and has not been heard from. Th impact of the collision was so great that the schooner's boom and jibboom were carried away and the spanker was badly torn.

The crew of the Potter say that the unknown craft must have been considerably damaged in her upper works, at least, as they heard the sound of breaking glass and crashing timbers. They think she may have gone down.

The Potter was coming up from Philadelphia, bound for Saco, Me., with a cargo of coal. She is in charge of Captain Hammett and a crew of five men.

Shortly after midnight, as the Potter was running dead before the wind between Tarpaulin Cove and Woods Hole, the steamer loomed up out of the night directly ahead. Before the wheel of the Potter could be put over the crash came.

At the same time, from the bright act the steamer deck above, they heard the crash of breaking cabin glass, the sound of a ship's boat falling out of the davits and of the deck and fittings of other destruction.

As the steamer sheered o ffthe crew of the Potter were too busy seeing if they were going to float to look for the steamer, but they expected her to be put about, and inquire as to damage, unless she was so seriously damaged herself as to be helpless. After hearing nothing from the other vessel, the Potter kept on, and put into this port for repairs.

ADAMS IN NEW YORK, GIVES UP

A. D. Adams of No. 53 State street, the note broker under indictment in connection with the Heinze stock frauds, went to New York to-day and surrendered at the district attorney's office this afternoon. He was accompanied by his lawyer, Louis L. Vershaus. He was taken before Judge Molqueen in the Court of General Session, where he entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment, and was given until 4 o'clock to arrange for $12,000 bail. Pending that time he was paroled in the custody of his counsel.

Dispatches from New York also state that Stiling Birmingham, the discharged loan clerk of the Windsor Trust Company, through Attorney Clarence J. McNamara, to-day accused some officers of the banking concern of being at the bottom of the loan to M. J. Joyce on $110,000 worth of Heinze copper stock, which resulted afterward in the theft of the securities.

Birmingham gave himself up to the District-Attorney and was afterward arraigned before Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Court on a charge of having violated the penal code in accepting a $500 bonus for the Joyce loan. He was held in $500 and paroled in the custody of his counsel until bail could be furnished.

At the same time Charles Ezra, President of the Eastern Brewing Company of Brooklyn, and Wells L. Clark were arraigned in the Court of General Session to plead to the indictments charging them with complicity in the stock theft. The matter was postponed for a week and Ezra was held in $25,000 bail and Clark in $12,500.

Lawyer McManus' statement, in accusing the officers of the Windsor Trust Company, said:

"Every step that Birmingham has taken in this matter has been with the full knowledge of some officer of the trust company."

SIGNAL MARS? 'IDIOCY,' SAYS PICKERING

GREEN BAY, Wis., Aug. 20.—"The public should not be deceived into believing that he will ever be able to signal to or talk with Mars. It's the veriest rot."

With this statement Professor C. Pickering, president of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America, opened the tenth annual session of the society at the Yerkes Observatory here.

Those who fear the earth will be destroyed in a collision with "some bobo comet" were comforted by another decision of the astronomers. They declared that such an occurrence is pure "idiocy."

The following resolution was adopted at Professor Pickering's suggestion:

As the public through misrepresentation of the views of certain astronomers have formed the impression that communication with other planets is at present possible, the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America desires to express its belief that in the present state of science any responsible rumor with that direct object in view is highly undesirable.

Professor Pickering and Professor R. R. Frost, who has charge of the Yerkes observatory, presented a list of the problems and "stunts" constantly discussed by newspapers with the result that scientists will never bother his head about. Following is the list:

Going up in a balloon with telescopes in order to make observations. This the true astronomers declare to be ridiculous.

Question of the inhabitability of the planets.

Probability of the destruction of the earth by comets.

Talk of comets plunging into the sun and thus generating a heat sufficient to burn up the earth.

Rumors of the reappearance of the Biblical star of Bethlehem. This star, which is reported ever so often from some part of the country, according to Professor Frost, is the planet Venus.

"Why do men professing to be scientists write of these things if they are not countenanced by true astronomy?" Professor Pickering was asked.

"I don't know," was the reply. "I can give no other explanation than the love of gold. Astronomers as professional scientists are not well paid, you know."

AMERICAN RACERS CLIP 17 DAYS FROM WORLD TOUR RECORD

we have seen the world, and therefore are able to appreciate the wonders, the grandeur and all the glories of our own country, thanks to the generosity of the BOSTON AMERICAN. It was a great trip from beginning to end."

Morris and Cohen composed the first section of the BOSTON AMERICAN contingent from the world race. They were the first of the globe girdlers to leave Boston, and they are the first to return. Their schedule called for forty-two days to be consumed in the trip, but unfortunate delays and missed connections caused them to lose over a day. Oddly enough, the delays occurred after the gale reached the American continent.

Time for Sight Seeing.

While the trip was made in forty-three days, the boys had plenty of opportunity to see the sights of the world, spending a day here, another day elsewhere, whole half days, and at some places two or three hours were allowed between trains to permit the boys to take a whirl through the cities in the different countries. It was Siberia and Japan, however, that made the greatest impression on the boys.

"The arrangements made for us, the accommodations engaged for us all along the line by the BOSTON AMERICAN," declared both Morris and Cohen, "were the best obtainable everywhere, and considering the time we made we saw a good deal of the sights. It was great. It was magnificent, and we enjoyed every minute of the trip.

"Talk of Siberia being a barren desert," spoke Morris. "It's all talk. The geography books will have to be revised, at least so far as Siberia is concerned. It is a great country and full of wonderful possibilities and splendid cities. The city itself and the countries we passed through afford.

He Likes Siberia.

"I liked Siberia as a country, but I can't say much for the people. They are hard to rail their souls their own, and it was in Russia and Siberia that we had our only clash with the police.

"Also we had some close calls from captors by bandits in Manchuria. In the dash across Manchuria our train was guarded by soldiers, owing to some difficulty between China and Japan over railroad franchises, with the result that bandits got busy, threatening to tear up tracks and wreck trains.

"Our first clash with the Czar's soldiery was in Moscow, when we tried to take pictures. The only thing that saved us from arrest was the American Consul-General, but we lost our films, while the cameras were returned to us.

No Picture Taking.

"At the next place we stopped, I think it was Orsk, we got off the train and tried to take pictures at the station, but were stopped by the police. We then got aboard the train and on the way out tried to pull out we tried to take the pictures from the train window, and nine of the gendarmes poked his sabre at us through the window in an effort to destroy the camera.

"Russia and Siberia were the only places where we needed our passports at all, and we might not have gotten through without them. The customs inspectors did very little about the baggage and they rummaged through our luggage in the belief that we would lug our contraband at Vladivostok.

Struck Heavy Rainfall.

"Our impressions are most lasting of Russia and Siberia, because we had rain all the time we were there. We struck heavy rainfall in Russia and Germany. In Paris we had quite a pleasant day and put all in sightseeing. The great number of warlike exhibits displayed in all sorts of manual work in Europe made a great impression on us. We had never before seen women taxicab drivers, nor women in any work, nor women cowherders or tinkers, and it was continual surprises all along the line.

"Then the great number of soldiers that were everywhere. The police in most of the European countries are called gendarmes and they look like overgrown policemen, all carrying sabres, revolvers and decked in gilt and tinsel. They are so entirely unlike our 'cops' that we could not quite get used to them as policemen.

Saw Many Famous Museums.

"We had plenty of time to see all of the principal sights. We visited all of the famous churches and museums in Paris, Berlin and Moscow, and they were certainly wonderful to us. I don't believe that I ever saw anything like them in this country. Possibly that is because I have not gone around looking for them. The gorgeous we saw gave us a great insight into the wonders of the old world.

"The trip was not surprises come, however, when we came to Japan. We had purposely chosen the Canadian Pacific, and we put them to good advantage. The American Consul here was extremely kind and went to much trouble to show us all that there was to be seen there. The city itself impressed us quite as much as did the trip across Japan from Tsuruga.

Meet the Chicago Racers.

"That trip to Tsuruga, by the way, was one of the most exciting on the trip. We had as companions on our trans-Siberian train two of the Chicago American racers, escorted by Charles Fitzmorris, the only record-holder. Fitzmorris on the way received word that our train would be held back to make connections with the Canadian Pacific ocean flyer which we had all missed in coming to Yokohama, and he arranged a special tug to take him from Vladivostok to Tsuruga.

"One of the train men tipped us off, and we had no difficulty in made arrangements with the officers of the tug to take us on the same boat, much to the chagrin and disappointment of Fitzmorris, who had figured on losing us there.

"From Tsuruga we engaged a train to Yokohama and it was a great trip through the country. We didn't like the food, but had a chance to study the development of the country from the car windows and at the various stops which the train made. The Japanese trains do not at all compare with the American trains; they are rickety and behind the times, but the railroad officials informed us that Japan is fast coming to the American Pullman and other luxuries.

Japs a Polite Nation.

"The great rice fields, too fields we passed through were a constant surprise and wonder to us. We, of course, had both read and heard of them, but the actual sight of them and of their work was a revelation. Then the people themselves were a study. Their politeness to us and their treatment of us on every hand was fine. It was better than anything we had expected even on all the rest of our trip.

"While the general type of buildings in Japan is not different from those we already had seen, there are a good many of the European type in course of construction, and the American Consul informed us that there was a great boom in building and that in the course of time Japan would be the equal of many of the European cities.

"While in Yokohama we had a chance to see the making of the famous Japanese silk; also we visited some of the government buildings and on all of them were greeted as heroes and there were words of praise and congratulation for the enterprise of the BOSTON AMERICAN in affording us such a magnificent trip. The Japanese newspapers as well as a private citizen sent us photographs of us wherever we went and we were generally honored.

Trip Across the Pacific.

"Then came the trip across the Pacific on the Empress of India. The boat was a big one to carry, and we had a delay in the arrival of some mails, but the time was made up on the trip across. Antipodes Day, in mid-Pacific, was something in the nature of a novelty to us. We had never heard of anything like it. It is a celebration by the sailors and all unofficial men of the day gained in the calendar owing to the fact that we were traveling toward the rising sun. There were all sorts of games, many of the sailors dressing as Neptune and submitting various members of the crew to humiliations and the privileged violations of some of the Water God's rules.

"Then came the landing at Vancouver, but previously we had lost Fitzmorris and his pal of Chicago racers. They put one over on us when they arranged for a tug to meet them at Victoria. They took them to Seattle, thus cutting a big gash in the mileage. We thought the Empress of India would be late in landing her passengers, and that we would miss the train at Vancouver, which would have forced us to remain over. We used the wireless and had the train held for us, but had only two minutes to make connections."

Racers's Troubles Begin.

The troubles of the racers really began from the time they reached the Canadian shores. At Winnipeg, while the Pullman cars were being switched about, Morris found himself on a train that was returning to Vancouver, while Cohen was bound for Montreal, but the telegrams had brought into play and the boys were reunited, but they lost the time that had caused them to lose a day in the schedule.

There was a crowd to greet them at the North station when they arrived to-day, and prominent in this crowd were A. Sallinger, father of the boy who finished first in the racing which decided the world racers, but whose son was practically thrown out of the race by fogs off the British coast in the journey across the Atlantic. He is due to arrive at San Francisco on the Manchuria on August 29.

SHOTS FLY IN STEEL STRIKE

PITTSBURG, Aug. 20.—William McNair, general manager for the strikers of the Steel Car Company plant, is in Harrisburg conferring with Governor Stuart. In answer to an inquiry to ascertain the purpose of the State authorities with regard to the State police, the Governor informed him that the State police had been sent at the request of the sheriff and the length and character of their services were for the local authorities to determine.

Another night of terror marked the Mc. Kee's Rocks dispute. Clashes between State constables and strikers were the chief occurrence and the slogger P. M. Pfeil, when he has been used to transport strikebreakers from the north side of the river into the plant, was fired on time and again by strikers on the south bank. A striker joined a fight inside the works of a man suspected of being a company spy, and numerous men on both sides were bruised and beaten before the troopers dispersed the crowd.

The strikebreakers continue to desert, and two of them, who say they were recruited in New York and have been kept in the stockade against their will, have been taken care of by the strikers.

HOLD ALIENS FROM CYMRIC

The White Star liner Cymric docked in Charlestown to-day from Queenstown and Liverpool, with 127 saloon passengers. There were 339 passengers in the steerage. These were carefully examined, as many immigrants who have been deported from New York try to get into the United States again through the port of Boston. Several suspects were held up.

Among the passengers was Lewis Baxter, who has been for the past eleven years United States consul at Leeds, England. He came home for a vacation.

R. Atwood Robinson, inventor of the submarine apparatus which enables one bound propellers to be fired for target work out of great 11-inch and 13-inch guns, was another passenger. He wanted to see the war games, and was disappointed when he learned that they were over.

His case was continued for a week in order that arrangements could be made for him to join. Forslundh, after his arrival here, worked for a year at the farm of Joshua Crane, the Harvard coach. He told the court that he earned $23 a month, and sent $15 of it to his wife and mother in Sweden. He lost his job the last of August, and has not been able to get work since.

Alfonso in Whiskers a Surprise to Spain.

LONDON—A San Sebastian dispatch says that King Alfonso has paid a brief visit there, coming from Madrid in order to see the Queen and the royal children. His Majesty's appearance caused a great shock among the members of the Court who remained in San Sebastian, when the King went to Madrid. During his absence the King has grown side whiskers like those worn by his father, Alfonso XII. in fact, he looks like a different person altogether. While the whiskers have appeared most of his hair has disappeared, being now cut very short indeed.

Separated by a Cable Error.

LONDON—As a result of a telegraphic error, R. M. Clarke of New York and his wife are separated by the Atlantic. Recently Mr. Clarke left for England, having arranged that his wife should follow him in a few days. He, however, transacted his business on this side sooner than he expected and decided that it was time for his wife to join him. Mr. Clarke cabled his wife, "Don't sail," but the word "sail" became transposed into "fail," and his wife booked her passage with all speed. She arrived in London Monday and her failure to find her husband caused her much anxiety. Yesterday she discovered that her husband had returned to America, and, much relieved, she will return on the first available steamer.

Suffragette Lashes Denmark.

COPENHAGEN—The members of the Folkething were treated to a lively overture by Mlle. Westenholz, a suffragette, whose activity in the cause has brought her into prominence on several previous occasions. Forcing her way past the attendants and doorkeepers of the Chamber, the woman planted herself in front of the President's chair and gave the deputies a verbal trouncing. "Here you sit," she cried out, "you Danish men, bagging sedately in a lust of power over the weal and woe of the country. But the women of Denmark, I tell you, disown you and brand you as the lot of lifelings belonging to no country, who betray the honor of Denmark."

Katherine Elkins Disappears.

BADEN—Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, wife of United States Senator Elkins, and her daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, who was at one time reported engaged to the Duke of the Abruzzi, have disappeared from their hotel here, although no mystery attaches to their absence. The "disappearance" was caused by the curiosity displayed by Americans and Europeans alike who saw the ... Some tourists even went ... pressed the situation, the ... on persecution, and they will attempt to keep secret the balance of their continental movements.

Anita Stewart Weds Sept. 15.

LONDON—The date has been fixed for the wedding of Miss Anita Stewart, daughter of Mrs. James Henry Smith by her first husband, to Don Miguel of Braganza, son of the Portuguese Pretender. September 15 is the day, and the ceremony will take place at Tullos Castle, the Dingwall place in Scotland taken by the prospective bride's mother for the season.

London Suffragettes Arraigned.

FITZGERALD, BACK FROM EUROPE, HURLS DEFIANCE AT MATTHEWS

and ex-Mayor Matthews as to the abatements on the Hotel Oxford and other properties owned by Mr. Matthews?"

"I have not a word to say on that just now because I do not know the details of the controversy.

"It is said in political circles that you had all this material about the Matthews abatements in your possession and were waiting to use it for campaign material?"

"I have no reply to make to that question now beyond this, that I shall deal with Mr. Matthews when the time arrives. I consider that Mr. Matthews, as a former Mayor of Boston, has treated me with the utmost unfairness, and I shall let the public know some facts in the proper time.

"If Plan Two be not accepted by the people and Plan One is their choice, will you still be a candidate, Mr. Fitzgerald?"

"I shall be a candidate, no matter which plan be adopted.

"It is said by leaders of your own party and others that you favor Plan 2 because you are afraid you cannot be elected under Plan 1?" "I cannot conceive of any combination of circumstances that would prevent me from being elected under either plan."

Then the ex-Mayor warmed up to his most earnest manner, and emphasizing every word with his index finger, said:

Relies on People's Judgment.

"They cannot show where the Mayor's office, when I was at its head, conspired at any wrongdoing or any treachery to the city's interests while I was in office. The sensible people of Boston are now alive to the true situation of affairs, and they know that it was under my administration that the initiative was taken for the organization of the Finance Commission. When I entered office as Mayor, I was not aware of the weak points of our system of city government, but with the evils from which the city had been suffering for fully twenty-five years.

Then, with a manner that was almost boyish in its earnestness, Mr. Fitzgerald said:

"If I were conscious of any personal responsibility for wrongdoing at City Hall during my administration, I would not embarrass my friends with the candidacy for one hour. I would withdraw in favor of a better man they might select.

"But it isn't the mere office of Mayor of Boston that I am now seeking. My integrity has been assailed. The good name of myself and of my family are at stake, and needs must I defend it.

"I am now convinced that a man cannot serve the city fully and be entirely an ex-Mayor while he is a member of a polemical machine. The machine hampers the man in office. It is so in the President's office. It is so in the Governor's office. A man is elected on the machine candidate of his party, and from the very outset he must recognize his obligations to his friends. Men should be chosen for public office for their character and their ability and above all obligations of personal friendship.

"Storrow Has Duty to Boston."

"Do you think Mr. Storrow a good candidate for Mayor?" he was asked.

"I think Mr. Storrow owes a duty to the city of Boston in his present position as a financier and as president of the Boston Business Men's Association, that is, to reserve the part of Boston from its impotency. While I was abroad I saw what the business men and the financial men of Hamburg, of Liverpool, of Belfast, of Cherbourg, are doing for the prosperity of their cities and harbors. Millions have been spent under the direction of those men for the benefit of those ports. I repeat, that Mr. Storrow as a financial man can do much for Boston as the head of the great organization of which he is the president.

"Why, at Liverpool I was told that no fewer than forty dredges and steam vessels are at work deepening the ship channels and clearing the sand bars from the mouth of the Mersey. Think of it, forty vessels. There is something for Boston's business men to think about.

"Do you regard Joseph H. O'Neil as a man well equipped to be Mayor of Boston?" was another query.

"I certainly do."

"Now then, having acknowledged that Mr. Storrow is a fine man for Mayor, that Mr. O'Neil is a good man for Mayor, do you know a man who is better than those two, yourself for instance?"

"Having been in the Mayor's office for two years and regarding myself as one of the leading influences that brought about reform of the city charter, and with the understanding I have of the city's needs and requirements, with the sense that I have made of conditions abroad, I think my qualifications for Mayor are superior to those of Mr. Storrow and those of Mr. O'Neil. In other words, I regard myself as better qualified because of my experience and observation than either of those gentlemen.

Leads Farewell Chorus.

"It was the originator of the Old-Home movement, of the 'Bigger Better and Busier Boston' slogan, and the spirit of that slogan is alive in Boston to-day. I have come back to our native city more convinced than ever of the great possibilities before Boston in the future, if all her citizens take hold in the work of Boston development."

"As a striking instance of the need of Boston business men to be up and doing, let me tell you that two Marconigrams, which were sent to me from Boston yesterday at 1 o'clock, did not reach me aboard this vessel until 8 o'clock this morning. This was caused, I am informed, by the number of independent wireless stations along the coast which are constantly interfering with the wireless service of ships at sea.

As the steamer neared the dock and Boston's welcome parties gathered together, the exchanging farewells, the ex-Mayor in his rolling baritone started a chorus, the refrain of which was: "Boston is the only city worth living in on earth." And when this died down he started the chorus of "We're here because we're here," to the air of "Auld Lang Syne." And then he concluded his duty as leader of the demonstration by calling for three cheers for Captain Mathias and the members of his crew.

The ex-Mayor was greeted on the dock by Richard Field, his former executive clerk, and a large number of political followers.

He told the AMERICAN reporter that he had a most enjoyable trip, both going over on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and coming back on the Cymric. In the rushing entertainments held on both voyages for the benefit of the Sailors' Orphans' Home he was elected chairman of the exercises and experienced nothing but the kindliest courtesies on both voyages.

Not Afraid of Graft Chasers.

A significant question was asked the Mayor before he left the vessel:

"Are you aware of the report that ex-Mayor Curtis at a recent gathering of clubmen made the remark that all cases of graft against the city of Boston would be taken up immediately and their prosecution pushed regardless of whom the inquiry may effect?"

"I am not afraid of anything in that direction," replied the Mayor inconclusively.

"While you were away, Mr. Fitzgerald, the report got around in State street circles that Josiah Quincy was quietly feeling a boom for Judge Corbett for Mayor. What do you say to that?"

"I know absolutely nothing about it. But I will say that in Judge Corbett there are all the attributes for a most excellent Mayor."

Prominent among the passengers were James Mullaney, collector of the port of Cork, Ireland, who is making his sixth trip to Boston. He will stay two weeks as the guest of his brother, Dr. Nicholas D. Mullaney of this city, at the Summer home in Hull.

Collector Mullaney said that the conditions in Ireland are now very promising. He said the AMERICAN is a pleasant way to draw the attention of its large constituency to the fact that he is collector of a port which has one of the largest, surest and safest harbors in the world. On a recent occasion the Mauretania, the largest ship in the world drawing thirty-four feet of water, steamed into the harbor of Ireland and swung to her anchorage.

Opera Singer a Passenger.

Mr. Dromney would have nothing to say about the political situation in Ireland, explaining with a good-natured laugh that he was a government official and was therefore supposed to know nothing about politics.

Another passenger of note on the Cymric was Colonel Edward J. Russell of Worcester, who preceded General Bridges on a war tour of the Charlestown State Prison. Colonel Russell went abroad with Mrs. Russell for recreation and came back feeling much improved. Another passenger was Miss R. V. Hill, who has come to join the Hammerstein opera company.

YOUTH HELD AS FIREBUG; 12 IN PERIL

Abraham Wein, twenty-two years old, of No. 130 Chambers street, West End, who was arrested on suspicion of having set the fire which imperilled the lives of a dozen persons in the four-story tenement house, No. 23 Lowell street, at an early hour to-day, was given a hearing before Judge Murray in the Municipal Court and his case continued till Wednesday, bail being fixed at $1,000.

Only the heroism of Reserve Officer Maurice Sullivan of the Joy Street Station and the firemen of the Hallowell street house prevented a serious loss of life.

Officer Sullivan, who made the arrest, asserts that he found Wein crouching at a corner of the cellar where the fire started, holding a lighted candle. The officer also declares that Wein's hands were smeared with oil, and that kerosene had been liberally sprinkled about the floor.

At the Joy street station Wein protested his innocence, declaring that he had passed into the cellar to put out the fire, which he says he discovered while passing by.

The second floor was occupied by Louis Cohen, his wife and children, and on the third floor were sleeping Louis Dana, his wife and a lodger named Samuel Goodman.

All made their escape, but Goodman, who became lost in the smoke. He finally made his way to a fire escape, and was rescued by a life net spread by the members of Engine Company No. 4.

On the fourth floor Sullivan found two of the four children of the family of Mrs. Sarah Bernstein partly overcome by the smoke. Picking them up in his arms he made his way to the hallway, calling to Mrs. Bernstein to follow with the others.

After conferring with Wein, Sullivan released him to the street and gave him into the custody of bystanders. Then, taking care-way back through the smoke-filled corridors, he passed through the house, awakening the occupants.

SCOTCH HIGH BALLS FIXED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The final report of the English Royal Commission on whiskey has just been promulgated. It sustains the contention of the rectifiers that all notable distilled spirits from grain are whiskey.

This report, just received at Washington, upsets Dr. Wiley's definition not only as to what whiskey is as a general proposition, but also differs radically with the food chemist's definition of Scotch and Irish whiskey.

King Edward's commission decides that any spirit made from any kind of grain and in any kind of still is entitled to the proper appellation of Scotch whiskey or Irish whiskey, if made in those countries.

The effect will probably be to prevent numerous test cases in the United States to determine what whiskeys from Scotland and Ireland should be called Scotch and Irish from being pressed in court.

SHAW ESTATE $7,229,973

The executors of the Quincy A. Shaw estate have filed their first report with the probate court, covering the period from July 2, 1908, to June 12, 1909.

The personal property which was inventoried last summer at $7,150,483 has increased in value to $7,229,973, of which $6,611,628 is invested, the largest investment being in 4,000 shares of Calumet & Hecla stock inventoried at $2,760,000, or $800 per share.

The largest single item of income received during the past year represented dividends paid on the estate's holdings of Calumet & Hecla stock. By the recent transfer of 900 Calumet & Hecla shares to Alexander Agassiz, the future income from dividends declared by that company will be diminished from last year's total unless the present $24 a year rate per share is materially increased.

REFUSES $1 FOR SVING MAN'S LIFE

STOUGHTON, Aug. 20.—Frank Cushing, who has made a number of rescues from drowning here, to-day saved the life of George F. Simmons, a guest of the Fairview Hotel, near Glencrest Lake. Simmons was bathing in the lake when taken ill and went down. Cushing, who was walking nearby, looked down regretfully at his new suit of clothing, which he put on for the first time to-day, and then jumped in the water and brought the drowning man to shore. Cushing was offered a dollar bill by the man for saving his life, but would not take it, saying it would not pay for the new suit of clothing he had ruined.

Perry and Joseph P. Cweker, Boston; W. J. Fahey, Lexington; George M. Hall, Norwood. For not having their lamps lighted Charles McIntosh of Newham was fined $10; Geo. H. Schroeder $5 and S. M. David $5. Eleven others had their cases placed on file.

ASKS BRIDGE PLANS APPROVED

The city has filed a petition with the State Harbor and Land Commission for approval of plans for repairing the Boston end of the Granite avenue bridge across the Neponset River, one-half of the structure being in the town of Milton. The plan shows that the deck of the structure is to be renewed and that addition splices are to be driven to support the structure. The State board will give a hearing on the petition on September 8.

HELP! ANCIENTS MAROONED IN OCEAN OF BEER

The beers that made Milwaukee famous are preparing to extend the right hand of fellowship to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company when that intrepid band goes to the city of Schlitz, Pabst and Blatz in October for its annual field day.

A competent committee from the Ancients went to Milwaukee recently to find out about the festivities to be enjoyed during the four days while the warriors are to spend there. This committee is composed of Captain Charles A. Dalzell, Lieutenant George A. Slaukopf, Lowell and W. M. McKenzie and Sergeant George H. W. Bates. The lamb body of the Ancients has been awaiting with exceeding anxiety a report from the held as to what this scouting party had accomplished in the way of arrangements.

To-day's dispatches from Milwaukee show that the scouting committee failed not in its duty. The programme of the Milwaukee festivities is fairly peppered with the names of Schlitz and Pabst. The invading army of the Ancients will find oceans of beer ready to be quaffed. Following is the programme of entertainment:

Monday, October 4, 11 a.m., arrival of 300 members on special train direct from Boston; 11:15, parade over down town streets in uniform; 12:30, luncheon in Schlitz park garden to friends of Ancient Chiefs.

CHAMPIONS IN BIG SWIMMING EVENT TO-DAY

Many of Boston's crack swimmers compete in the events of the water carnival, to-day and to-morrow, on Marine Park Beach. The carnival is an annual event under the auspices of the City Point station of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps. On Sunday the members of the corps will give exhibitions of life saving, showing the proper methods of rescuing drowning persons and resuscitating them on shore.

To-day's events are for women and girl contestants. There are many entries, and a large crowd will witness the races.

Among the younger contestants to-day are the Misses Rose Pickerell, Esther Donohue, Margaret McDonough, Mary McDonough, Madeline Hevlo and Florence Hevlo. All of these are skilled swimmers.

The events include a race of 50 yards for girls under fifteen years, 100 yards for girls under eighteen years, 200 yards open to all. Diving from a high platform and a race for married women swimmers. There is a silver cup prize for each winner.

To-morrow's program has on it a 50-yard race for boys under sixteen, a 100-yard race for all comers, a 500-yard open race, plunge under water work and a burlesque scenery contest in the latter the contestants are expected to use all sorts of funny things, including the soiling of a blueberry pie at one end of the course.

REGISTRARS PAID TWICE FOR WORK

Major Brooks of Lynnfield has discovered that the city pays twice for services rendered by the city registrars during the months in 1902. The situation came about through the old custom of the registrars collecting a December their salary for the entire year beginning in May. As a result of Mayor Brooks's discovery it is said that Frederick W. Macdonald will pay back to the city about $200. He was registrar in 1902-1903.

OYSTER CROP FOR THIS YEAR FAILS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 20.—The oyster set in Narragansett Bay this year is a failure, and many of the oyster growers will sustain heavy losses as a result. The failure of the set here is rendered more serious by the fact that practically the same conditions prevail in Long Island Sound.

TWO HELD AS MEMBERS OF WIRE GANG

Two men suspected of being members of a gang of six notorious copper wire thieves who have baffled the police for three years and stolen thousands of dollars' worth of material, were arrested in a junk shop in Washington street, North to-day by four inspectors and two Pinkerton detectives.

The prisoners are Nicholas Perossa, aged thirty-four, of No. 100 Marginal street, and Luigi Auricentino, aged thirty-three, of No. 34 Prince street, Boston. They were taken while endeavoring to sell forty-five copper bonds, used to connect trolley rails, which they are charged with stealing from the Boston & Northern railway.

Their captors were Inspectors Shields, Sheehan, Patterson and Rooney and Pinkerton Detectives H. J. Murray and W. D. Merritt. The sleuths had followed them into the shop, and the men made no resistance when, according to the police, is the leader of the gang.

Trailed for Three Years.

It was only after a chase of three years that the police and Pinkertons men secured the clews which led to the capture. About twelve days ago they became convinced that the two men taken to-day were concerned in the thefts, and they have shadowed their homes day and night. Last night these men were not at home and the officers found out whereabouts, their capture "with the goods" resulting to-day.

Perossa was arrested in Hingham in December, 1907, charged with stealing copper wire from the Edison company. It is said that he has a relative in State prison for killing Patrolman Malley of Brockton.

Caused Much Trouble.

Though the value of the loot found on the men to-day is insignificant, the importance of the capture is great, as the telegraph, telephone, trolley and lighting companies have suffered much from the depredations of wire thieves. In the case of the trolley lines, particularly, the annoyance and necessity of repairs has figured as much as the money losses.

Both men were arraigned before Judge Murray in the Municipal Court charged with "having in custody wire valued at $100 and were held in $1,000 on the first charge and $500 additional for receiving stolen property, for a further hearing. It was found at headquarters that Luigi served eight years in State prison for highway robbery.

Captain Dawson was in his sixty-sixth year. He was born in London, February 13, 1845. He became a member of the Boston police force in 1875 and was promoted captain in 1885.

He served in almost all of the city stations. He was retired February 15, 1905, because of ill health.

ATTORNEY FOR SUTTONS CALLS DOWN COURT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 20.—Henry G. Davis, attorney for Mrs. Sutton, today made public the following statement regarding the finding of the naval court which investigated the death of Lieut. James N. Sutton at the marine barracks at Annapolis:

"In view of the findings and opinions of the Sutton court of inquiry, and especially the fifth opinion that charges of Mrs. Sutton are unsupported by even a shadow of reason, I feel it my duty to the mother of two (as so faithfully sought to save her son from the stigma of suicide to submit for the benefit of the public the following statement, passing without comment, the contemptible, prejudicial and unnecessarily vindictive language in which the court has seen fit to clothe its conclusions.

"I am compelled to this course in large part by the apprehension that those who know only so much of the case as the press has found it possible to publish may be led to think that the declaration of a body of officers in the military service of the country must be a righteous one, and that Mrs. Sutton's attitude may have been justly estimated by those to whom the honor of the service, as well as the cause of justice, was far the occasion committed.

"All agree that at the time of the fatal encounter Sutton had two revolvers, one of which was taken from him. Sergeant de Hart testified, both before the board of inquest and the court of inquiry, that shortly before he was sent for by the hospital steward, some one in the party handed him a pistol, and this subsequently proved to be Sutton's. He only attempt to identify the person who handed it to him was his statement that the pistol was one in the table toward the parade ground from Sutton, on which side all agree that the only persons were Lieutenants Adams and Willing.

"Dehart thought that he picked this from the pocket, and, as he said, because he felt that its ownership might prove embarrassing, he threw it away, which fact he could not have reported to Lieutenant Utley. With this statement Utley agrees, although Lieutenant Willing says it was to him that Dehart reported the fact and Willing added that he and Dehart hunted for the weapon the next morning. Dehart says that he hunted for it and in a few moments came and told him that "they" had it. Utley gave it to him. Dehart says that he asked Utley the next morning why he gave the weapon to him, and Utley did not tell, but said that he (Utley) did not.

"Colonel Dawes said that the fact that the weapon was missing was not disclosed to him that night, because of the accused officers testified positively and without hesitation that it was not he who handed the weapon to Dehart.

"Stress is placed upon the court's utter failure to deal with this pregnant fact would be superfluous."

IMAGINATION A GREAT ASSET FOR TROOPS IN 'WAR,' SAYS CONNOLLY

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY.

Famous Short Story Writer and Battalion Quartermaster and Commissary Officer, Second Battalion, Ninth Regiment.

IN THE FIELD WITH THE BLUE ARMY, Aug. 20.—To a man on the side lines a war game seemed to be a tryout of mind over matter. It was not so bad when a touch of the rocky forces got you with much yelling and firing of blank cartridges. You could see them and hear them and were prepared to accept gracefully their mathematical superiority, but when you cannot see anybody nor hear anybody, and your own mathematics and fighting spirit impel you to great hope, it is somewhat disconcerting to be told that you are outnumbered or outflanked. It was the umpires who did this—a lot of army officers who rode around on good mounts with white bands in their hats and a colored orderly in their wake. They have all kinds of rules printed in a little book which they carry in a neat little pouch.

We, the Third Battalion of the Massachusetts Ninth, had what we considered a fine position, in the very van of the Blue Army, somewhere near the middle of the line and on the slope of a beautiful hill. We had reason to believe that the Red Army was feinting on our flank with the intention of driving the centre of the line, and we lay in the juicy grass on the lush slope of one little hill, waiting to be shown. If necessary, we were prepared to discharge some millions of blank cartridges in the defence of our beloved country.

The Reds did not come—at least not while we were there; but a regimental commander did come—in a motor machine—and told us to get out. It is a fine thing to command a big motor car in this war game. Did you ever stop to consider the difference between hiking twenty miles over paky roads and covering the same ground in a six-cylinder auto? If ever I go to war again I think I would rather be quartermaster of a big auto than of a battalion of hungry infantry.

The enemy, it seems, was posted on some other hill with a lot of guns which bore on our hill. And while we were trying to get a fire going to cook some real coffee in the rain they had been touring in a heavy fire on us—so heavy that we were well nigh decimated. We knew nothing about it, and in the soft, juicy rain the usual number answered roll call; but as it was, and we had to move out. Had we only expected their presence we could have imagined a battery of screeching disappearing guns on the crest of one hill, called the umpires' attention to our heliperal thoughts, and then it would have been back to Jersey for them.

Fine Chance for Imagination

But back we had to go, when we thought we were almost comfortably fixed for another day. Did you ever break camp at 3 o'clock on a rainy morning? It is fine discipline—if you don't get pneumonia out of it. And did you ever hold one corner of a map and try to puzzle out your course over strange roads on horseback, with two engineers, also on horseback, trying not to tear the map apart, while the three horses danced about and your ponchos flapped over your soaking person? Where we were weak was not in convincing ourselves, after the example of military umpires' rulings, that it was not a rainy morning and that the roads were not hopeless and that we had not had breakfast, and on top of that laughed that it was not our tired bodies and legs that were marching.

But it was great discipline, and we almost imagined it was when a hundred or two people rushing wildly of a hotel veranda at Monponsett to shriek out that they had just received word over the 'phone that the terrible Reds had broken through the line and were after us. "Hurry up!" They called. If we hadn't been hurried since 3 o'clock that morning we might have listened to them. We would have welcomed a million Reds along about then, if it were only to exercise a new set of muscles on them.

However, we had one reward. Before the end of our march we ran into a large body of Reds. They were not expecting us. They probably had no notion of our superb retreating powers, hence were amazed at the volleys of blank cartridges we poured in on them. Nobody knows just how many cartridges were expended in that battle, but probably a few million. There were great volleys of cheers on both sides. One pity was that in the hottest part time was up.

Kept Union Hours in War Game.

In this war game, you see, we kept good union hours. We were not allowed to give battle before 5 o'clock in the morning, and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon the whistles blew again and we called it a day's work, and as it is eight hours. No good union soldier cares to work longer, and should not be expected to. If ever the army does get a union scale it will surely be a strong organization, especially in times of peace.

However, to get back. In the mimic war the same positions that are held at the close of a day's work continue on the morrow. That is something like war. In the old days they used to work day and night when business was good—but no more of that.

We are much pleased with ourselves. The Reds, also, are pleased with themselves. We would not have expected it had we not met a few hundred of them down at the crossroad store. On the postcards they mailed they had generally inscribed: "Met the Blues today and walloped them good." Ours said pretty much the same thing. Further discussion over rootbeer did not change either side's opinion.

Gen. Wood Lauds Bay State Soldiers in the War Game

MAJOR General Leonard Wood, Commander of the Department of the East, chief umpire and in charge of the war game, makes this statement commendatory of the Massachusetts troops.

"Reports that the Blue forces suffered disastrous defeat are not correct. General Pew and his men deserve the highest kind of praise for their performance on the final day. The Blue Army had been scattered owing to the uncertainty of just where the opposing forces would make their attack. This element of doubt is always a handicap for an army on the defensive.

"While the rounding of the Blues' left flank by General Bliss was an important move and placed the major part of the Blue forces in a position which appeared to be disastrous, the masterful concentration of forces checked the onward march of the invaders and placed both armies in such a line-up that the Red Army could not possibly have moved on for the capture of Boston without four or five days or perhaps a week more of the hardest kind of fighting. If the manoeuvring had been continued.

"Therefore, reports of the crushing of the Blue forces are erroneous. General Pew and his men have every reason to feel proud and so has their Commonwealth. There is no cause for discouragement.

"The commanding general takes this opportunity to express to all the troops engaged his sincere appreciation of their services and the soldierly spirit and bearing manifested throughout the period of the exercises, and he is particularly gratified with their splendid conduct and the respect for persons and property of civilians which has characterized their sojourn and march through the country."

DECLINES TO MEET WIFE

Inspector Wolf of Police Headquarters returned to-day and reported that Joseph Sundburg, manager of a hat store in South Pearl street, Albany, N. Y., refused to come here to answer to his wife's suit charging desertion unless requisition papers were presented.

Sundburg lived in Boston formerly. His wife and one child are living here now. Mrs. Sundburg swore out a warrant against her husband, charging desertion and non-support. She charges that he left her on June 15, 1908.

At the instance of Inspector Wolf Sundburg was arrested yesterday, and when Wolf wanted to bring him back here on a morning train he sent for an attorney and decided to fight the case. At a hearing before Judge Addington in Albany Sundburg denied that he had deserted his wife on the day she named in her complaint. He said that he had sent her money and that he offered to take her with him to Albany. He furnished $2,500 bail while the question of requisition is pending.

ELOPE WHILE ON AUTO TOUR

Lewis H. Titus of Glen Cove, Long Island, and Miss Mary L. Meehan of Sea Cliff, son and daughter of two of the wealthiest residents of the island, are to-day completing an automobile tour of New England as husband and wife.

Several days ago they started out on the tour, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sleicher of Glen Cove. It had been understood that they were to be married some time this Fall.

The happy party got here on Monday last. It was Titus's twenty-fifth birthday. Miss Meehan is twenty-two. Suddenly it occurred to them that the best way to celebrate the birthday was with a wedding. A license was taken out, and the Rev. Stanley Searing of No. 31 Paskert avenue, Whitinsville, tied the knot.

Then they telephoned home, were forgiven, and resumed the auto tour.

WOMAN ASKS WRIT; IS FIGHTING BOARD

Sophia L. Jackson filed a petition to-day in the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board of Health of Mattapoisett to grant her or some competent person in her employ a license to remove garbage from her residence in Mattapoisett. The controversy arises out of an exclusive contract given by the Mattapoisett Board of Health to Fred Derick J. Vera to remove garbage there. There are several similar cases pending and the will be heard Tuesday.

"MORI" RUNS AWAY; MORISON IN GRIEF

Mori has disappeared, and a deep, dark pall has settled over the Stoneham estate and the family of Manager Lindsay Morison. Mori is the three-year-old Boston terrier owned collectively by Mr. Morison, Mrs. Morison and son, David Morison. When Mori was on the job there were divers arguments over the ownership. Now that he has disappeared the question of ownership is subordinated to the general grief at his loss. If anyone has Mori pine, return him to the Orpheum and make the Morisons family happy again. Mori is fat, black, with white markings on his forehead.

HELD FOR JURORS ON ROBBERY INTENT

Thomas Sullivan, of No. 2 Orintal court, and Louis Dress, of No. 34 Newark street, were in the Roxbury court to-day charged with assault with intent to rob James Reddy of No. 107 Comm street. Reddy was waiting for a car at Roxbury Crossing and Sullivan and Dress, it is alleged, attacked him. The judge held them for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail each.

SENATOR WHIPPLE IS FOUND DROWNED

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 20.—Henry C. Whipple, State Senator from Coventry, was found dead in a pond near his home by his wife to-day. He left the house to attend to some farm duties and after waiting several hours his wife went in search for him. He had been in ill-health some time.

REDS COME INTO BOSTON; BLUES HOME TO-MORROW

The Red Army under Major General Tasker H. Bliss, which "captured" Boston, broke camp at Hanover early to-day and came into Boston as fast as special trains could bring the various regiments to the South Station. The troops began arriving shortly after noon.

The army transports which arrived in the harbor last night tied up at the New Haven docks in South Boston to-day and as fast as the soldiers reached Boston they marched to the transports. By nightfall all of the transports will be at sea on their way home with the Connecticut, District of Columbia and New York troops.

General Pew's defeated Blue Army remained in camp today at West Hanover and will break camp to-morrow morning. The militiamen did no drilling or marching to-day, but rested and prepared for their return home.

General Bliss and his staff were among the first to reach Boston. General Bliss went on board the transport Kilpatrick. Sailing on this transport also are six companies of regular coast artillery from New York forts, which aided the Red Army by attacking Nahant and Fort Heath. These attacks failed, and showed that Boston is splendidly defended from the ocean by its coast forts.

Riding Tests Now.

The first troops to reach Boston to-day were the District of Columbia and Connecticut regiments of infantry, which left Hanover at 11:15. Preceding them came their camp equipment of tents and stores, which were put on the transport Kilpatrick. The troops boarded the transports Sumner and McClellan.

The Tenth Cavalry (regulars), are encamped at North Rochester and with them are the regular army officers who acted as umpires of the war. The soldiers will remain encamped while the officers use their horses to make the riding of thirty miles a day for three days ordered by the War Department. After the tests, the officers will proceed to their stations and the negro troopers will proceed overland to Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont.

General Wood, chief umpire, and the regular army officers declare the manoeuvres to have been the greatest test of the efficiency of militiamen ever held in America.

Both Sides Pleased.

General Wood and General Bliss are greatly pleased at the success of the manoeuvres. General Pew, commanding the Massachusetts troops, is pleased too.

Both armies, however, consider that the Reds won, having cut General Pew's army in two. They were marching along steadily toward Boston without meeting any effectual resistance. That General Bliss won is not considered surprising or a source of mortification to General Pew or his officers. General Bliss is the best tactician in the regular army.

General Wood paid a glowing tribute to the men of the Blue and Red armies. He said:

"The soldiers took their work earnestly. There was no roughriem. It was a fine showing for our National Guard."

Commanders Talk.

"I think that I had the theoretical advantage with the road open to Boston. But you must remember the Blue Army had a hard task. They had the smaller force with a long line to cover. They might have done better with more cavalry."

General Pew said:

"We licked them to a frazzle. Another day's fighting, and the Reds would have been driven back. We had them surrounded.

"We had to keep our army spread out because we had to defend, not attack."

PAID $2,500 TO LOAF; POLICE CAPTAIN VICTIM OF CZARLIKE SYSTEM

The AMERICAN has been requested to ask Commissioner O'Meara why he continues to have Captain James J. Driscoll on the punishment list. This officer is a veteran of the Civil War. He has been at headquarters over a year. He has absolutely no official duties. He has not written an official piece of paper since he has been there.

His duties are to report at 8 o'clock, put on his uniform and loaf around until it is time for lunch. Then he is supposed to come back and loaf again until it is time to go home. He gets $2,500 a year from the city of Boston for this work, besides his annual vacation. The captain does not enjoy it. Of course he will not talk or it.

He is now about sixty years old and will not retire for six more years. Does Commissioner O'Meara intend that he shall loaf all that time?

His remedy to command has been correctly questioned, but it is the consensus of opinion that Driscoll would make a better station house commander than many of the men now in command. There is at present a vacancy at station 12, but he does not get it. There have been several vacancies since he has been on loafing duty, but he has been ignored.

Questions for O'Meara.

Recently Police Commissioner O'Meara had twelve police captains who command station houses before him. This was the first time he had ever called so many of them together. It is doubted at headquarters if more than half of the captains personally. He surely has never been a quarter of them together. As for patrolmen and sergeants—well, they are out of question.

Why does not Commissioner O'Meara visit his station houses at least once a year? Is he too much the over-lord for such work? Why does he not make White inspections and oil the department of the lieutenants in the downtown sections who go to sleep on their posts?

There is no one in the department who makes a systematic inspection of station houses. Why should not Deputy Cole at least have this duty? What good is he to the taxpayers in the rank of a deputy if doing only a captain's duty. Why was he made a deputy?

Scarcity of Reserves.

Why does O'Meara jump superior officers who have clean records and who perform good police duty before he came in the department and put new men in their places. Is it proper that men like Lieutenant O'Neil in Station 14, and others like him, should have their promotion suddenly stopped because they are "too old" in the eye of O'Meara, when yet splendidly efficient?

If a big riot or robbery happened on a precinct what would the captain do for men? What constitutes the reserve force? Answer: The police clerk and one day house men. Sometimes it is the special officer or any other officer that happens to be in the station house.

Why does not O'Meara pull his police captains down a peg or two? Are they entitled to be autocrats because they wear a lot of gold braid? Ask the citizens who do not wear high silk hats what kind of treatment they get even when they go to make a complaint. The reporters constantly see the insolent way that citizens are treated. Not all the captains are of this type, but too many are.

Arbitrary With Chauffeurs.

The writer of the following letter makes a manly statement, which will appeal to all citizens who believe in a "square deal." It shows O'Meara in a new abuse of power:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

After reading in the AMERICAN the communication from the "Taxicab Chauffeurs," I must call the attention of your readers to the custom of Commissioner O'Meara of suspending, for two weeks, the license of any taxicab chauffeur when he has been fined in court for some small offense. This seems a very unjust and uncalled-for proceeding.

Mr. O'Meara must be singularly devoid of any sympathy or human consideration for these hard-working men. He must take pleasure in using his power arbitrarily when he is not satisfied by the penalty (usually a large fine) given by the court, but adds another punishment by depriving the chauffeur of his means of support for two weeks.

The man may have a large family to support does this enter Mr. O'Meara's mind? Not at all! He has a large salary, while no one can suspend for two weeks, no matter what mistakes he may make or what wrong he may do. What has the needs of this poor chauffeur's family to him?

In the case of chauffeurs who are working for private families this additional punishment is never given. Why should the taxicab chauffeurs be discriminated against and persecuted? They are as honest, hardworking and sober a class of men as any. The power of the police from the constables down to the patrolmen is used to make their lives miserable by constantly worrying and nagging them. There is no doubt that O. O'Meara is inflicting in many cases a very unjust and severe second penalty for a small offence. Has he a right to impose this penalty?

I.

Police Gave No Aid.

W. J. McKnight of No. 21 Park street, Norwood, called at the AMERICAN office to-day and said:

"Last Fall, having a few dollars in the bank, I went to the office of a mining company on Huntington avenue. I met a man who sold me 500 shares of stock in this company for $500. After waiting several months, I went to him to find out about my investment. His answers were not satisfactory and I demanded my money back. He told me that I could have his note. I refused his offer. Then he told me to come around the next day and he would get me have the money.

"I did not get around that day, but did the following day. I found that he had gone away and would not be back until June. I have been around there several times since, but nobody knows anything about him. I then went to police headquarters in Pemberton square. The officer in charge there told me that he could not assist me in any way."

"Forty Thieves" Unmolested.

Here are two more letters, selected from the hundreds received by the AMERICAN:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have just read your timely article upon the present administration of the Boston police department. It is high time that some paper in Boston had the courage to say the things "out loud by the market place," as that article did. Now that the curtain has been touched at all, let it be raised higher still, and disclose to the public more of the inefficiency and dark doings that are unquestionably asserted with the police force as it is now manned, or unmanned, in this city.

In any other city in the world, except Boston, that wretched gang of hoodlums called the "Forty Thieves," which has been disgusting and terrifying the community, would have been run to earth and stamped out long ago.

What excuse has Police Commissioner O'Meara to offer to the public for having dilly dallied with this gang of ruffians so long?

Mr. O'Meara is a man of rich attainment as a journalist, but as the head of the Boston police force, he is a "square peg in a round hole."

The frequently recurring outrages by those "Forty Thieves" are proof sufficient of the weakness of the police department as it is now controlled.

(Signed) ROXBURY CITIZEN.

Police Gallery Play.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

What you said so clearly, impressively and judicially in your paper about the Boston Police Department, is only what thousands of citizens of Boston have been seriously thinking for the last few years.

There has been a lot of gallery play, much high-toned smoke-talking and altogether too much fine letter-writing mixed with the police work of Boston since the present commissioner undertook the duties for which he had no practical training whatever.

Instead of a courteous, respectful, efficient police force such as a city the size and importance of Boston is entitled to have, the community is afflicted with a department in which, to a large extent, those qualities are sadly lacking.

Ask the average Boston policeman for the most ordinary information as a stranger, and contrast your treatment as compared with that you will receive in New York.

An experience I had within four months convinced me beyond all doubt that as a public servant the average Boston policeman is vastly inferior to his brother officer in New York.

Representative "Dave" Mancovits of Ward 8, one of the directors of the Hendricks Club, denies to-day that there is any trouble between the Hebrew Democrats and the other Democrats of the ward or that Representative Martin M. Lomasney has been sending out circulars and planning a rearrangement of the ward politics this Fall.

The story started with a report that the Hebrew voters of the ward were going to protest against the proposition to nominate former Councilman Joe Maynard and "Jed" McCarthy for the House and that Dave Mancovits was to consult at a meeting of protest. Mancovits said:

"There is no trouble. There is no truth in the story that Lomasney has been sending out circulars to the voters. As to Lomasney putting a ticket of his own out this Fall, I know nothing about it.

"Ward 8 politics will not be discussed till the September meeting of the Hendricks Club. I know nothing of my being nominated for the Senate. As for Mr. Maynard and Mr. McCarthy being nominated for the House, it has not been mentioned, so far as I know."

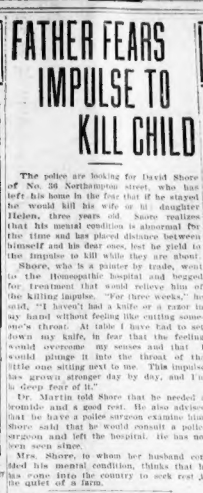
FATHER FEARS IMPULSE TO KILL CHILD



Mrs. Ruby Healey and James J. Gordon, Providence clopers.

The police are looking for David Shore of No. 36 Northampton street, who has left his home in the fear that if he stayed he would kill his wife or his daughter Helen, three years old. Shore realizes that his mental condition is abnormal for the time and has placed distance between himself and his dear ones, lest he yield to the impulse to kill while they are about.

Shore, who is a painter by trade, went to the Homeopathic hospital and begged for treatment that would relieve him of the killing impulse. "For three weeks," he said, "I haven't had a knife or a razor in my hand without feeling like cutting someone's throat. At table I have had to set down my knife, in fear that the feeling would overcome my senses and that I would plunge it into the throat of the little one sitting next to me. This impulse has grown stronger day by day, and I'm in deep fear of it."

Dr. Martin told Shore that he needed a trouble and a good rest. He also advised that he have a police surgeon examine him. Shore said that he would consult a police surgeon and left the hospital. He has not been seen since.

Mrs. Shore, to whom her husband confided his mental condition, thinks that he has gone into the country to seek rest in the quiet of a farm.

PROVIDENCE PAIR WHO STOLE AWAY TO BE MARRIED

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 20.—James J. Gordon was so charmed with the music, as well as the personality, of Miss Ruby Healey that he had proposed, was accepted, and the two had hurried to Attleboro and were married before any of their friends knew of what was going on. Before they left the young people secured a permit to marry from Father Honey of the Church of the Assumption. They were married by the Rev. Father McCarthy in the parish house at Attleboro. The bride is nineteen years old and is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. The Gordon home is at No. 105 Athol street. Congratulations from their friends were many when the news became known. They will live in Providence.

The elopement is the newest in runaway marriages, especially as the bride and groom live in Providence. The modern development and hurry-up marriage centre in the United States Consular service has been "Everybody elopes to Providence and is married. We will go to Athol." And so these elopers buried away from Providence just to be different.

$23 RECORD TAX RATE FOR CHELSEA

The highest tax rate ever known in Chelsea is that for the year 1909, fixed by the board of assessors. The rate is $23 per thousand, an increase of $3.20 over the previous year, and was the result of the loss of over six millions caused by the great conflagration of a year ago.

The present valuation is $24,041,350. Last year the valuation was $20,872,400, this year showing an increase of $3,168,950.

6 STEAMERS TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

The six steamships owned by the Metropolitan Steamship Company, the Yale, Harvard, James S. Whitney, H. M. Whitney, H. F. Dimock and Herman Winter, are to be knocked down at auction. Judge Frederick Dodge in the United States Circuit Court continued the ancillary foreclosure decree in the proceedings brought against the company by the American Trust Company, trustee.

The suit was originally brought to foreclose the mortgages executed to secure a $2,500,000 bond issue of the steamship company to the trust company as trustee.

While the steamships and other property of the steamship company is to go by way of the hammer, Boston will not lose the service of these two express passenger boats and the four freight boats. The Metropolitan Company is a paying proposition, but it became involved in Charles W. Morse's meshes.

The Yale and Harvard, running but four months a year, are paying big dividends besides the interest on the mortgages covering them. The freighters always did pay well. The Metropolitan Company is protected only to clamp owners and that its service will continue as usual.

TRUNK TOO HEAVY; LOSES A $10 BET

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Glimpsing within eighteen feet of his destination after betting $10 that he could carry a trunk weighing 375 pounds from one Hundred and Eighth street and Amsterdam avenue to Eighty-eighth street and Broadway and back to his starting point, David Wernstein, an employe of the Harding Express Company, is seriously ill in St. Luke's Hospital.

Vigorous in Old Age

Many aged men and women testify that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in old age brings strength and vigor.

Recently Mr. Clinton De Witt, Copemish, Mich., wrote: "I am 75 years old, and at my time of life need a good tonic stimulant. I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for years and find that it is the very thing I need, and am free from the pains and aches old age is subject to. I am strong and vigorous and work every day. I heartily recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to all old people as the best medicine they can take."

"I am 92 years old and subject to many infirmities common to men of mature years. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been a great relief in many ways. I can truly say it is the king of Restoratives."—Silas Rockwell, 314 Garrard Ave., Covington, Ky.

"Mrs. Thompson and myself have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey the last year or more and find it the best tonic for the aged. We are in the best of health, and I myself can do a good day's work every day. I am in my 70th year (Mrs. Thompson is 73), and take the tonic twice a day."—David Thompson, Peekskill, N. Y.

"I commenced taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey ten years ago. I find it an excellent tonic. In the summer of 1907, although 84 years old, I worked in a canning factory from June till middle of November without missing a day, and felt strong enough any day to ride 50 miles on my bicycle."—S. R. Baldwin, Fulton, N. Y.

"I am in my 94th year and am enjoying excellent health, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the tonic stimulant and great medicine for the old."—Mrs. Laura B. Wheeler, Winsted, Conn.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system, is a promoter of health and longevity, makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong.

RED SOX TRAVEL TO-DAY ON WAY TO PLAY BROWNS

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

DOVES ENTERTAIN CHICAGO CUBS FOR FEW GAMES

RED SOX TRAVEL TO-DAY PLAY BROWNS TOMORROW; JAKE STAHL OUT OF GAME

GAMES TO-DAY MAY BUNCH LEADERS CLOSER IN RACE

The Red Sox do not play to-day, while Philadelphia and Detroit are in action, and as a result a reverse for either team now ahead of the Speed Boys, who are on their heels, will mean closer bunching between the three leaders.

If the Tigers should drop two games to Washington to-day Boston would be only two points shy of second place.

The Tigers have a chance to tie the Athletics for first place with a percentage of .613 if the former team loses and the Tigers win their double-header.

With the Tigers within striking distance when the Red Sox get busy to-morrow with the Browns, the Jennings gang may be crowded out of second place, so the fans are wishing that the Senators do a clean-up this afternoon.

By BILL SPARGO.
Boston American Special Correspondent with the Red Sox.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Boston Red Sox, a trifle ruffled over the parting shot the Yankees dealt, pulled out of the Grand Central depot last night at midnight for St. Louis.

The jump from the city of gay resorts to St. Louis certainly is a big one and it is safe to say that the players will be pretty glad to get out of the train when it arrives at Brownsville, Barring any accidents or delays the team will get to St. Louis saturday morning at an early hour. The Red Sox play the McAleer boys that afternoon and they won't have any too much ginger sprinkled around when the line up, on account of the hard journey.

Hard luck seems to be the order right on the trail of the Red Sox. It cropped up at the start when for the first two days the team was in New York, thus keeping the players from getting their raps at the Highlanders one at a time.

These games, of course, were doubled up and played in the last two days. Two double-headers in a row isn't any easy sort of a job and the best they got in New York was an even break.

Manager Lake didn't figure on getting much better than an even break, for the Yanks are playing pretty nifty ball and getting in the heavy swats with the willow every now and then. With this combination they are bound to win once in a while.

"Now, don't let the loss of a double-header get your goats" said Manager Lake last night after the players had rigged out in their street clothes. "All teams have to lose some time and don't get upset when it comes.

"We had several chances to pick off both the games yesterday, and we didn't play any bad baseball either, but they all done and past. Just think of what we'll do to those Browns when we get a crack at them Saturday."

Jake Stahl's injured eye is getting along as well as can be expected. When he went to the dining room he found it too badly hurt to push the food into his mug. He looked like he had been exchanging wallops with young Mr. Langford, that small thing with them broad shoulders. He said he was done up in bandages and "Doc" Green had him all fixed for seven right nicks. Stahl will be in the line game for several days at least, and it may be more than a week. He cannot use his right on his cheek bone and, of course, the kneeling and discoloring went right to his peeper.

In speaking of the accident Stahl said: "I thought, of course, that I could catch it although Hall put all the smoke he had on it. I would have caught it, too, but Dennuitt took a sort of jump and just tipped his shoulder, that rebuff it up and the next thing I remember was that I was all surrounded with a lot of gaping bugs who were kicking about tough luck. Was that tough luck? Say, Bo, that was worse than tough luck ever hoped to grow to be. I'll be back on the job in a few days though, and we've a good man to fill the hole. They won't miss me much."

It is likely that Manager Lake won't let Stahl work in any of the games at St. Louis whether he is able to see or not, for he is figuring that Walter can do the work well enough while pitted against the Browns to make victories for Boston pientiful.

With the exception of Stahl, the Red Sox are in cracking good condition to make trip. West and Arundel should come home pushing the Tigers and Athletics, if not in both.

Clyde Ritchey, who is guarding second base for the Providence team at the Polo city and was doing a little gossiping with the Red Sox last night. The Providence team played in Jersey City the last two days. "Rick" says he is doing pretty well with the trays and hitting the pill pretty hard, too.

DICK HYLAND IN BIG BOUT WITH FRAYNE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—The sports who patronize the local boxing matches at Dreamland will spend their money to the Coliseum this night for a change.

There will be two twenty-round contests, in one of which Jimmy Frayne and Dick Hyland will be the opponents, and a victory will mean a great deal, inasmuch as it will bring the lighter securing of a step nearer to the championship honors with Bat Nelson. Hyland is the favorite at odds of 10 to 9.

As lightweights go, Frayne and Hyland may be considered in the front rank.

Frayne's prestige was greatly increased by his recent defeat of Young Corbett. While Hyland added considerably to his reputation by the unsought for laurels he secured in Coach Truss, New York's pet lightweight.

Monte Attell and Percy Cove are also to meet for twenty rounds. Cove, who comes out of the North, says he has waited five years for his heritage as bantam champion. The Percy Peeve of the talk hasn't demoralized the betting market. Attell is a 2 to 1 favorite, and Cove's money cannot be bonited with a powerful searchlight.

MELLODY IN TOUGH MATCH

Is Honey Mellody still to be considered in the fighting game or is he making an an attempt to get back is a question that will be definitely settled on Tuesday night when he faces that tough lad, Billy Rolfe, at the Armory A. A.

The popular Charlestown scrapper is anxious to prove to his friends that he is just as good as ever and does not ask for any easy game to prove it. He certainly couldn't seek anyone who should give him more trouble than the South Boston wallloper. The way the pair hit it will be surprising if the bout goes the limit.

THREE 1915 FIELD MEETS TO-MORROW

Another round of Boston 1915 athletic events for the boys of the North End, South End and the Roslindale and West Roxbury districts will be held in the several parts of the city to-morrow. The North End games will be held at Charles bank, the South End games at the Columbus avenue playground and the Roslindale and West Roxbury games at Pierce's field, with John G. O'Donnell, jr., will be in charge of the first named, Edmund Illies of the second and Leo H. Leary of the third named. As usual, the games will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Each week shows an increasing number of entries in these athletic meets, and to-morrow's games promise to be the most successful thus far held. The junior events are particularly well filled, and it is expected that half the entries will be in compete in the 50-yard dash and the 220-yard run. Besides these events are calling over a number of boys who have attained local celebrity, and the healthy interest shown by these seniors is making the Boston 1915 committee, while gave the events a think better than ever of the Summer athletic plan.

The only swimming meet under these same auspices to-morrow will be the events at Dewey Beach. There will be the customary 50-yard swim for boys, diving for form, swimming under water and 440-yard swim. All these for boys over sixteen years.

For juniors under sixteen years are the 100-yard race, diving for form and 220-yard swim. The girls will be attracted by the 50-yard swim and diving for form for honors, and by the same events for juniors.

A special event for girls has been added in the form of a half-mile swim, for which there are three prizes. Those who have won prizes in other events will still be eligible for these, but one can enter more than two events. Entries must be filed before to-night at any bath-house or registration centre.

The Boston 1915 swimming events which were to have been held at Marine Park to-morrow have been postponed that there will be no conflict with the Webster Lake weavers' swimming contests at the same place.

GOLF GOSSIP
NEWS OF THE LINKS

The first day at the Essex County meeting at Manchester-by-the-Sea was one of general elimination, and to-day the four flights are fighting it out at match play for the various cups. Never since the Essex Club started holding open tournaments a few years ago has such a classy gathering attended the meeting. The hard and fast rule of good weather for the Essex meeting held yesterday, for a beautiful golf day greeted the players, and many remarked that they had never known it to rain on the opening day of the North Shore tourney.

The Mountain and Maine courses are all busy with tournaments at this time of the year. The Profile House, N. H., started this week with a tournament with an 18-hole qualifying round, with two eights qualifying. At Sugar Hill the annual tournament is down for the final round while the Ivers cup and championship tourney is on at Poland Springs, Maine. The son of the Vice-Presidents, Mr. M. Sherman, is playing at Great Barrington and succeeded in breaking the 80 mark on the Stockbridge links a beautiful 76 despite the soggy course. The July play for the Sherman cup tournament which is scheduled for the last day of August and September 1, 2 and 3.

W. H. Horne, who has the record of the longest drive in any competition of importance, which he made in the North Berwick tournament, will have to give in to James Braid, who has the record of walloping the ball only five yards short of 400. This drive was made on the Walton Heath course, and was measured by Sir Alexander Kennedy, the well-known engineer, while many others authenticate the performance.

JOYETTE WINS AND IS CHOSEN BY COMMITTEE

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 20.—The Joyette, owned and sailed by Commodore W. H. Childs of the Beaconsfield Yacht Club, won the sixth elimination race for sender boats this morning. After the race the committee race committee for the Jubilee to come along side the committee boat, and Commodore Childs was told that his little yacht had been selected as the second of the three boats to race against the German senders.

The Elfen had already been chosen as the first boat, so that now only the Manchester III., Crooner and Wolf remain in the field. These three raced this afternoon, and it is believed that it will be the final contest in the elimination trials.

Four boats started this morning about a mile outside of Halfway Rock and the course was three miles to windward and a broad reach home. Joyette was first over the line, closely followed by the Manchester III., Crooner and Wolf.

All passed on the port tack and sailed that way for only a few minutes before they came about. Crooner took the lead with the Joyette and Manchester III. next. The Wolf seemed to be out of her element in the freshening wind and fell steadily behind.

Before the mark was reached, however, the other boats pulled up on the Crooner, who actually carried the lead for a time. The gun boom with bailon lifts the Joyette, sailed by Commodore W. H. Childs, of the Beaconsfield Yacht Club, proved to have the speed required and of the finished first about a minute ahead of the Wolf, with the Manchester third, and Crooner last. Unofficial times:

Joyette	1:07 54
Wolf	1:08 35
Manchester III.	1:09 16
Crooner	1:09 54

YOUNG TAFT ANNOYED BY GOLF GALLERY

ESSEX COUNTY CLUB, Manchester-by-the-Sea, Aug. 20.—Millionaire members of the most exclusive North Shore society were early at this delightful course to witness the match play of the second division in which the best amateur golfers of Massachusetts and several from the Metropolitan district and the Middle West competed.

The first match finished for the other trophy, the Essex cup, saw the elimination of G. I. Willett of Essex by H. Porter of St. Louis by the score of 2 up to play. It was a close match all the way, and both had low medal scores. T. M. Claflin, the crack Wollaston golfer, defeated W. W. Reed of Lexington by 3 up, 4 to play. Claflin played at the top of his game and his medal score was out in 39, playing even fours to the fourteenth, when the match ended.

Robert A. Taft, son of the President, who qualified in the third division, started bright and early with R. H. Clark, wealthy member of the Tedesco Club. Taft received one stroke from his opponent, the difference in their handicaps.

There was a fairly large gallery at the first tee when this match began, and some trifled after the play. A gallery has a disconcerting effect on the son of the President, and he looked somewhat annoyed when one of his chief was applauded. Taft settled down to very fair golf after the first two holes had been played, and appeared determined to win.

The second medal round of the meeting was that of Lt. Mott Sargent of Essex, who defeated A. Sweeney, the Harvard golf captain, by 6 up and 5 to play in the second division. The Essex player had the splendid medal score of 75 and might have been two better had he taken any chances.

Baseball News and Notes

Realbach and Gerrall of the Cubs, Cunnie of Pittsburg and Downie of Cincinnati are the only National league pitchers who have pitched one hit games this season.

Dell, of the Middletown team of the N. Y. S. L. league, must be of major league calibre if batting counts as he leads the league with a percentage of .529.

Harry Camnitz, who has been purchased by Pittsburg, is a brother of Phil Camnitz, the Cleveland lad. Harry has been pitching nice ball for the McKeesport O. & P. league team.

Bob Spade has pitched but one good game of ball against the Cincinnati team, that one being pitched good ball until about the sixth inning, when he was touched for more than an airship.

"Ypsi" Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner isn't going to retire from baseball. Not next year, or the year after, or the year after that. This positive assertion comes from "Kitty" Brandell, first baseman of the Ypsilanti, and for many years associated with Wagner as a member of the Pirate circle.

There say that as much day goes, by Hughie Jennings, the gingerly leader of the Detroit Tigers will let Ralph Works go. Ralph is growing fatter and fatter every day.

Isn't it funny how such a part of baseball lays in the fact that all teams slump, no matter how strong they are, some time during the season? The Tigers and Cleveland of the American League are certainly having theirs, while the Brooklyn leaders of the Eastern League race, are also in the throes of the humble. The latter they will be the harder they fall.

Jack White, the Buffalo left fielder, has made more hits than any other man in the league. To date he has made 113 in 349 games, and has an average of .301.

There being a drought in the scandal row in the Pittsburg camp of the Federal League, they are digging into the last dregs of the Eastern leagues and to keep themselves in practice.

Fenders and life-nets should be installed in front of the grandstand at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, to protect the fans during Saturday's game between Connie Mack's Athletics and the St. Louis National League player. Grady's last engagement was in the Tri-State League.

Jack White, the Buffalo left fielder, has made more hits than any other man in the league. To date he has made 113 in 349 games, and has an average of .301.

There being a drought in the scandal row in the Pittsburg camp of the Federal League, they are digging into the last dregs of the Eastern leagues and to keep themselves in practice.

The Cleveland team seems to be about the quietest bunch in the American League, for in the last 100 games they have only had all the time they seldom dispute decisions.

The Little Rock (Southern League) Club signed Catcher Mike Grady, the former Philadelphia and St. Louis National League player. Grady's last engagement was in the Tri-State League.

Boston Phillippe of the Pirates, and Paul Grand Rapids' lone John S. Terry recently pitched a ball game between Pittsburg Lodge, No. 11, B. P. O. E., and Pittsburg Lodge, No. 17.

The Pirates have won 13 straight games from the Braves this season. Chicago has won 12 games from Brooklyn this year.

Lajoie, by making a total of eight bases Tuesday, came within one of equalling the season's record for the Providence League, held by Dan Costello, made on July 15. Fred Clarke holds the National league record with eight, made at Hoppitown Park on June 11.

Rube Oldring and Ty Cobb are having a great race for batting honors in the American League, and Ty will have to keep going in order to win out.

Beckendorf is doing good work for Detroit in the absence of Stanage. The former Newarker has a badly split hand.

Ellis has proven to be one of the finds of the season, and Clark Griffith got mad because Boston would not waive on the player early in the season.

Hughey Jennings admits that he made a mistake in allowing Ralph Archer to get away, but it is a fact that Hughie Archer is making good, a change of scenery has done him good. A change of scenery is often most beneficial.

Frank Schulte has been hitting the ball safe with a vim and has now worked about as often as any one in the major leagues.

Fred Merkle furnished the hit that won for Brooklyn in the game with the league they will be harder they fall.

Larry Lajoie is playing a brilliant game for the Naps, and his fielding is as good as it ever has been, during his career.

In Chicago on Sunday the Brooklyn Club had a fine day, winning both games. Mike Donlin, Eddie Lennox out of the game, and then some Cubs' fans wanted to know if Chicago couldn't ever a manager or team has had hard luck it is Brooklyn.

It seems almost incredible that Burk, of Detroit, has been at the game for 15 years, but such it is a fact. The little fellow is one of the star players of the Tigers.

"Mike" Donlin, who is at Saratoga, said yesterday that next year he will positively play on the Philadelphia team, if he can get there. Connie Mack alone for turning out a classy team when it's up to him.

FIELDER JONES, A MAGNATE?

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 20.—Fielder A. Jones, formerly manager of the Chicago White Sox, has designs on half ownership of a big league baseball team, preferably the Boston Nationals, St. Louis Americans or Washington Americans, according to report.

"I am arranging to purchase half interest in the St. Louis Americans," said Jones to-day. "Their deal falls through. I may become manager of the Browns next season."

REISLING FOR SENATORS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Manager Cantillon of the Washington Americans has signed Outfielder Reisling of the Texas State League to his pitching staff. Reisling will report at Detroit to-morrow.

GREER TO RACE DURNAN.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 20.—Frank Greer, the Boston oarsman who has been coaching St. Mary's Club here announced to-day that he expects to leave Saturday for Boston to meet James Durnan. Greer's reference to a proposed sculling race between Greer and Durnan is Frank Greer's proposed race with Lynch here is off.

EBBETS HAS PAID $30,000 FOR NEW DODGER PLAYERS

At the fatal hour of midnight Friday the big league drafting season closes for 1909, and by that hour Charles H. Ebbets will have spent an even $30,000 for ball players since last Fall. When it was recently announced that C. H. E. had $30,000 in his kicks to blow in giving Brooklyn a high-class ball club, the whole universe grinned. Believe the story of Monte Christo, believe that Jonah got a free ride in the whale's rathskeller, believe that John Anderson paid 60 cents for breakfast, but do not ask us to believe this, so said the public.

But Ebbets is Ebbets. He and Henry Medicus have dug down in their jeans for $28,000 up to the present moment, and Ebbets is starting for Indianapolis, or Cincinnati, to lay up enough recruits to complete the $30,000 total. By 12, midnight, Friday, the books will show this amount, and you can bet your life that Charley and Henry keep their books more up-to-date than ex-Banker Morse.

Just to illustrate, when the club recently played an exhibition game in Fairmont, W. Va., "Whitey" Alperman put in a bill for five cents for trolley fare, from hotel to grounds. What a cheap, miserable subterfuge it was. "Why didn't you ride free, like other boys?" demanded Frank, dear Ebbets, in his sternest tones. "I'll have to see this case."

Alperman slunk back to his seat in the parlor car so overcome that he lost $5 in draw poker ere he regained his nerve.

But this is Ebbets—Medicus way, and honesty compels the admission that the Brooklyn players like it. "Charley is on the level" they agree, and that story about $28,000 is on the level.

Yours truly got a peep at the list and the prices. The last batch came into Mr. Ebbets' possession yesterday. It was a wet afternoon, no game and nothing much to do. So Messrs. Medicus and Ebbets communed closely in the writing room of the Copley Square Hotel, while the club sat in the lobby near by. Charley and Henry figured up their balance sheet and decided to close up the following deals:

Pitcher, "Hooky" Holmes; second baseman, Pattee; catcher, Stanrage; pitcher, Barger; infielders, Holly, Alcock and Hamilton; Catcher Evans, Pitchers Kraft and Swain. These slaves were promptly notified that they might prepare for their debut in Brooklyn next year.

Holmes comes from Augusta, and was with the Dodgers a while, having latterly been at Rochester. Pattee was with Jersey City and Rochester. Stanrage has worked in the Eastern and Tri-State. Barger and Holly have been at Rochester. Alcock comes from Chattanooga. Evans, Hamilton, Kraft and Swain all lived quietly in Hannibal, Mo., until C. Ebbets turned the searchlight upon their shrinking figures. Charley saw them the other day when his club played in Mark Twain's home town. He did the thing so cleverly that none of the regulars suspected his real intention. But the Ebbets eye could not be fooled. It picked out two pitchers, a shortstop and a first baseman. Brooklyn has about forty-eight players now, with three or four more to be drafted by midnight Friday.

The entire list is being prepared by Mr. Ebbets's own hand, and will be read at the astonished public very shortly.

Both Mr. Ebbets and Mr. Medicus are highly elated over the financial debacle. "I have been worked nearly to death," said he latest, "and this is no exaggeration, collecting a big company of future stars. Good for the newspaper guff about Kling and about being stingy, without a word. All the while I was in touch with fifty different clubs, paying scouts and making scout an excursion myself. I believe now that I have the material from which a grand left club can be built. I appreciate that Brooklyn will double its attendance for a first division club, and I want to please the public. That was why I was in offering Murphy $15,000 and four or three legged, that can be brought to toe the mark. How would you like to make book and what odds would you lay that an ostrich can outstep a kangaroo.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Would like to know if Battling Nelson lost his championship title of lightweight? I says that Jimmy J. Jeffries broke a wrist fighting Nelson years ago, did not, because he says he never fought Nelson. Yours, H. H.

But Nelson has not lost his title. Jeffries broke his wrist or hand in a fight with Bob Armstrong in New York in 1898. Armstrong is a negro. Jeff also fought Peter Jackson and Hank Griffin, both negroes.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

To decide a bet, how many horses may start in a running race? My former friend claims 12 is the limit, while I claim there is no limit. J. PISH.

I never heard of a limit being placed on the number of horses, but if the entries are so great in number as to make the field unwieldy the handicapper usually divides the race into two events.

THIS BET GOES AS IT LAYS, BUT don't, for the fractional part of a time limit, think I'm going to pick out any team as the logical champions. I have trouble enough of my own.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Will you please settle the 12th out print a letter from Mr. John J. Coy of the Eastern A. A. A. of Revere. We think Mr. Coy's suggestion a good one, but take the opportunity to deny his statement that his team has lost but one game this season. On April 25 a p. the West Lynn Baseball Club defeated the Eastern A. A. by the score of 16—5. A second game was to be played at Lynn on July 5 a. m. but was cancelled by Mr. Coy, owing to the fact that the Eastern A. A. were playing the West Lynn Baseball Club, a team composed of eighteen year old representatives of the North shore, having won 15 and lost 5, and would like to meet any team that can put one to beat by the consensus of greater Boston. Hoping to see the letter given due publicity that it deserves, we are yours respectfully,

WEST LYNN BASEBALL CLUB.
Chas. R. Mosher, Mgr.
No. 27 Linden st., West Lynn, Mass.

W. T. R., QUINCY, MASS.—HOPE YOU saw Matt yesterday all dolled up in his best clothes. Bud Fisher is not only a clever picture maker, but he must be a mind reader, as your suggestion is still on my desk.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Will you kindly inform me the correct score of the New York-Chicago game, American League, of Saturday, August 14, 1909, and oblige, yours truly, M. A.

Chicago won the game from New York, the score being 7 to 3.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

The Berkeley A. A. of East Cambridge have been doing a lot of boasting lately about being the best in the city, and would like to see a team who could beat them. This team has defeated the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. Belt, one of the fast Roger Wolcotts of Cambridge.

JOSEPH MACK,
Captain and Manager.

RUMORS OF A BASEBALL WAR, IN which the American Association is to be the aggressor, are keeping the settlers busy, especially in the Middle West. It is reasonably stated that the American Association will become an "outlaw major league circuit" next year with clubs in Chicago, Louisville, Pittsburg, Indianapolis, Buffalo, Baltimore, Brooklyn and either Providence or Newark. The men behind the scheme, led by Havenor of Milwaukee and Tebeau of Louisville and Kansas City, are said to have been digging up financial backers for several months and have met with encouragement from persons who believe that baseball will become more popular next season. The whole deal looks like the annual scare, and I'm going to copper any bet I make on it. Every club in the American Association made money last season, even the St. Paul bunch, and it seems to me the owners of franchises in the association are too wise to kill the golden egg laying goose by precipitating a disastrous war.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

What percentage of games did Pittsburg win during the years 1908, 1907 and 1906?

R. S. F.

In 1908, twelve out of twenty-two; percentage .545. In 1907, ten out of twenty-two, or .455. In 1906, five out of twenty, or .192.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Will Nevel Healy, Juniors of Cambridge claim Bob Moore left Cambridge and by the Athletic Sporting Club of Boston. Now I find it a mistake, for the Auburns of Cambridge have the $12 to put up, and they are willing to play the Hillside Juniors for the championship.

JOHN KANE,
Manager of the Auburns.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

W. P. R., BOX 2,007, BOSTON, MASS.—Having a large and hungry family watching anxiously every week for my pay envelope, I refrain from printing the remainder of that "poem" on the Red Sox, as per your request. Some one might lend me up to something I couldn't back away from. You may not believe it, but I have worse than the one from which I sprung a verse the other day. Some day I'm going to have a chance to walk slow behind one of these alleged poets, and the glee with which I don black clothes and white gloves will be recompense for a lot of anguish. What would you like to do with the perpetrator of this, which came in my mail this morning

The Redsox of B

Who are after the Pennant you see.

All those Boys, so proud and Gay,

Would give them the Pennant for this season to stay.

There is more of this, but I guess that will be plenty.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THIS? At the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, at Seattle, they are having what they call the Noah's Ark races to-day. Among the contestants will be camels, elephants, kangaroos, bears, cubs, dog teams, burros, Indian ponies, apes, ostriches and any other family, two or three legged, that can be brought to toe the mark. How would you like to make book and what odds would you lay that an ostrich can outstep a kangaroo.

SWIMMING RACES AT CITY POINT STATION

The annual swimming races and water sports under the auspices of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps at City Point Station to-day and Saturday are attracting a lot of notice, while the list of entries includes the best known swimmers in this section. For this afternoon the program is as follows:

Fifty yards for girls under fifteen years, 100 yards for girls under eighteen years, 200 yards for women and girls diving from eight-foot platform, and unlimited women's race, 440 yards, all over).

Saturday's card is for men and boys, as follows: Fifty yards for boys under sixteen years, 100 yards open, 400 yards open, diving from eight-foot platform, hurry scurry race and swimming under water. Suitable prizes are offered for each event.

DOVES GET GOOD PITCHER

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 20.—Cliff Curtis, for four years a member of the Brewers pitching staff, was sold to Boston National League team. Cliff will leave for his new berth immediately.

The big fellow has not been up to his regular form this season and for this reason the Milwaukee management was willing to dispose of him.

When Cantillon was manager of the Brewers he secured Curtis from Texas in the spoils and later on traded him back to the Texans for Joe Goodwin. In 1906 he was bought from Indianapolis and has remained with Milwaukee ever since.

PIRATES MAKE BIG TRADE.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 20.—Pittsburg fandom is rejoicing in the announcement that Manager Fred Clarke has secured the services of Third Baseman Byrne, who will play with the Pirates for the first time to-day. Clarke traded Third Baseman Jap Barbeau and utility infielder Allen Storke to Roger Bresnahan, of St. Louis, for the clever infielder. The deal had been hanging fire for eight months.

Barbeau, with Toledo last year, proved the sensation of the American Association. He gave excellent promise early in the season here, but of late his work has fallen away. It is said that his relations with several of the Pirates are such that he could not give the club his best services.

TOWNS CANNOT CLOSE ROADS TO AUTOISTS

By J. C. KERRISON.

The position which the Massachusetts Highway commission has taken regarding the closing of streets to automobile travel is one that cannot help but meet with the approval of motorists and non-motorists alike. It is an absolutely fair one, and shows beyond all question that the commission endeavors to be fair and impartial on all matters that may come before that body.

The first decision under the new law made by the highway commission on this matter of closing the streets was that to the effect of the town of Sharon, which desired to close several roads. In this decision the commission laid down the principle that any streets of merely local importance should be closed to automobiles and not open them as automobile routes, despite the these streets. The state law provides that only enough streets shall be closed to meet traffic, and in that regard at least there is really no appeal from the statutes.

Of the many streets desired closed by Sharon the commission permitted only the closing of Totman, Pine and Farnace streets, which by its opinion are of only local importance.

It is quite evident by this decision of the commission that the general closing of streets will not be permitted. The commission even went so far as to suggest to the selectmen of the town of Sharon that certain of the streets desired closed could be made more safe if the brush and stumps were cut back and cleared. This decision was not what might be termed an office-chair decision, but one arrived at as the result of a personal visit by the members of the commission to the streets and thoroughfares named.

It is said that the men most interested have by no means given up all hope of running a race this year for the Vanderbilt cup. The peace agreement between the Automobile Club of America and the American Automobile Association, which marked the end of the controversy between the two organizations last year, provided that both the Vanderbilt cup and the Automobile Club of America's Grand Prize race cup were to be decided to a racing association to be controlled by the Long Island Motor Parkway.

While this association has not been formed, so far as is known, it would seem to be by no means impossible to obtain the consent of the owners of the seven cups to permit a race being run this year for the Vanderbilt cup or the racing association will not be yet be organized. With specially constructed automobile racing tracks now in completion or practically finished at Indianapolis, Atlanta and Cheyenne there is certain to be enough fast racing cars gotten out and ready for racing so that no difficulty would be experienced in securing enough entries to conduct a race for the Vanderbilt cup that would rival in popularity any of the former contests.

It is declared that there be no chance of the 1909 Vanderbilt race being run at Lowell or any other place but Long Island. No definite decision has been made to hold the race, but the matter is under consideration, with the chances in favor of a race being held.

* * *

It now looks as though it will be possible for the Buick cars to enter the stock chassis championship race at Lowell. Chairman Hower of the racing board says he can see no reason why their entry should not be accepted and it will make no official announcement for a few days, just as soon as he can straighten out the tangle connected therewith. Additional entries for the Lowell races have been received from the Velie, Isootta, Acme, and American, and the total number of cars is now thirty-three.

* * *

Walter Christie has entered his new 135 h. p. four-wheel drive racer in the stock chassis championship and time trials on September 7 and Mrs. Custer will be driven by Knox "Giant" in the same, driven by Louis Disbrow.

The revised entry list shows that twenty-eight cars, exclusive of the Buicks, have been entered. They are as follows: Thomas, Jr., Columbia, Apperson, Mason, Atlas, Lozier, Benz, Alco, Simplex and Reinler cars; five each of the Knox and Chalmers-Detroits; four each of the Stearns-Knights and three Maxwell. Reliances, it is expected will also be entered, as received within the next few days from the Flint, Ionia Pneumatic and Mason, Shawmut, Ford, Herreshoff, Haupt, Smith and Allen-Kingston companies.

ATHLETIC GAMES DOWN ON THE CAPE

The first day of the Barnstable Fair, Tuesday, August 31, is designated as Athletic Day, and the following handicap events will be run off: 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, 1 mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, and shot put 16 lbs.

F. C. Thacher, ten old Harvard football player; and Major F. H. Briggs, of M. I. T., are on the committee.

Entries close Thursday, August 26, with George B. Hann, West Yarmouth, Mass. There will be three prizes. Games are sanctioned by the N. E. A. A. U., and already quite a number of Boston athletes have signified their intention to compete.

BOSTON AMERICANS DOUBLE

Pettiness of Spirit Injures Only Yourself

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

IF you are a merchant, waste no time or breath in talking about the dishonesty and unworthiness of your rival in business.

If you are a physician, or a beauty specialist, or a dressmaker, or teacher of wisdom, the same advice applies to you. All the vitality you can draw from space keep to make your own methods successful.

Each time you indulge in criticism and backbiting, or in open denunciation of the methods of some competitor, you are losing ground yourself.

This is the law and you cannot change it.

I have known a physician to devote the greater part of his time while calling on patients, or while they were in his institution, to the disparagement of brother doctors whose ideas did not coincide with his own.

Room for All Sincere Souls

There are metaphysicians who are similarly inclined, even though such a procedure is in contradiction of the laws they teach. But while it is a simple matter to teach philosophy, it is very difficult to make it a part of our daily working basis.

Every time we stop to our own appeal to the forces within or without for strength and aid to criticise a fellow man who follows some other line of procedure we turn off the current the Divine Electrician has always in working order for our use.

There is room for every sincere soul on God's earth.

No one can crowd another. No one can injure another's business.

You alone can injure or interfere with your own affairs, and the surest way to do is to interfere with the affairs of another.

With every man godspeed. No matter if he opens a place of business next door to you in direct competition with you, wish him godspeed.

Say to him and say to yourself: "There is room for good workers everywhere. We are like two stars in space, and one does not interfere with the other's light. We only give the worlds more light."

Wish Others Success

It may be hard work to bring yourself into this state of mind, but once you arrive there you will be conscious of new power, new force.

If your competitor is on a lower plane, and opened his business merely to injure you, rest assured this attitude of mind will have ten-fold the power to overcome his efforts than a resentful and defiant one.

Conserve your forces. Nothing dissipates them like fine-picking.

Think about your own splendid possibilities and let your mind reach up and out for new ideas and new developments in what you are doing, not back and down, seeking flaws in what your competitors are doing.

Let other artists paint, let other authors write, other merchants sell, other actors act, and other singers sing. Wish them all glory, success, happiness.

Lift your soul to the vastness of space and refuse to be petty and small and jealous and critical.

Ask for all the force, all the light, all the wisdom that is being stored up for your use. Receive it, and go your way.

Wood and His Saw

Esau Wood sawed wood.
Esau Wood would saw wood.
All the wood Esau Wood saw Esau Wood would saw. In other words, all the wood Esau saw to saw Esau sought to saw.

O, the Wood Wood would saw! And oh, the wood-saw with which Wood would saw wood.

But one day Wood's wood-saw would saw no wood, and Esau thought the wood Wood sawed was not the wood Wood would saw if Wood's wood-saw would saw wood.

Now, Wood would saw wood with a wood-saw that would saw wood, so Esau thought a saw that would saw wood.

One day Esau saw a saw saw wood as no other wood-saw Wood saw would saw wood.

In fact, of all the wood-saws Wood ever saw saw wood, Wood never saw a wood-saw that would saw wood as the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood would saw wood, and I never saw a wood-saw that would saw as the wood-saw saw Wood saw would saw until I saw Esau Wood saw wood with the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood.

Now, Wood saws wood with the wood-Wood saw saw wood.

O, the Wood that wood-saw saw Wood saw would saw.

O, the wood Wood's wood-shed would shed when Wood would saw wood with the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood!

Finally, no man may ever know how much wood the wood-saw Wood saw would saw, if the wood-saw Wood saw would saw all the wood the wood-saw Wood saw would saw.—Tit-Bits.

HE'LL GET ON

A CURIOUS person of a certain town who loves to find out everything about the new residents, called the son of a new neighbor one morning in a doctor's office.

"Good morning," he said. "Little boy what's your name?"

"Same as dad's, was the quick reply.

"Of course, I know, little boy; but what is your dad's name, dear?"

"Same as mine, sir."

Still he persisted. "I mean, what do they say when they call you to breakfast?"

"They don't never call me; I allus gets there first."

SOMEBODIES' SWEETHEARTS

By NELL BRINKLEY

There were varied types of girls—beautiful and otherwise—along the beach, and they were, all of them, somebodies' sweethearts

"LOVE is blind," they say. I don't know—but I strolled the length of a bathing beach the other day and watched, and I know that the little beau shuts his eyes tight or ties 'em up with his pocket-handkinaffs when he goes down to the sounding sea and the inhabitants of the edge thereof!

All along in the silvery yielding sand, set with bone-white shells down closer to the frilled edge of the wash of a broken roller where the pound of the sea makes it hard, all along in the sand were somebodies' sweethearts, basking in the sun.

Somebody loved 'em—every one. Chubby, fat ones with their hair pasted back, and the sun cooking their noses, and ugly black rubber caps pulled tight on their heads, their suits pasted close like their hair—but there's somebody that doesn't see it that way! Somebody only sees that my Lady Chubby's teeth are made fine and white, and her eyes still dark, like when she was a girl, and bright; that she is kind and bright and smiling and good: that her hair under her cap is still fair and fluffy —that it used to be thick and golden like yellow corn: not the ugly cap that I see does he see, but the hair under it. And he sees that as it used to be.

Beautiful ones; with their bright and dark hair in tendrils round their wet cheeks and hanging down in a blanket over their shoulders and faces and curling on the sand to dry; trim limbed and armed, their scarlet and bright blue caps, like raw color on a palette, knotted sassily behind their ears and over one eye, in dreams of bathing frocks—and these are loved, too.

Somebody looks at 'em proudly and is glad his girl is the trimmed and the silliest and the best-to-look-at on the whole blessed sands. That her hair curls instead of stringing. He watches the water tremble in little diamond drops in the wisps of her hair where it glints like gold wires.

Love's eyes don't miss anything with the pretty girl—they're wide open and he can see with 'em!

And then the thin ones—that are so ravishing in a knee-waisted frock, but look like the very "Old Scratch," in a bathing dress. All collarbones they are, and ankles and elbows. Their skirties hanging on their hips like they would on a coat-hanger, and their shanks sharp. Their legs just as they were when they were twelve and growing like a sunflower. Their faces blue and—but somebody loves 'em!

Somebody only sees that she is light on her feet and g ne for anything—that the eyebrows maybe are quick to express and beautifully curved; that her hands and feet are little; that she has a way with her, and looks in her eyes that tell things for that somebody. He sees what we can't even with a fair mind and a kind heart to help us.

Somebody calls the Chubby Lady "Baby." Somebody calls the Sunflower Girl "Little Beautiful Rose." Somebodies' sweethearts they are.

The little Pink God is the most violent lover of beauty in the world—but he is dee-lighted to tie up his eyes and love somebody who is far from what his Lady-mother was!

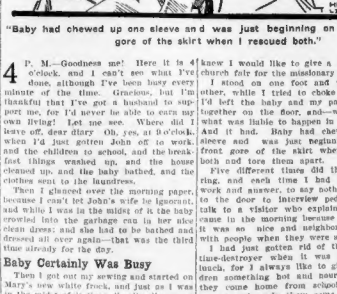
Does the Average Wife Earn Her Living?

The Second Installment of the Diary of a Day in the Life of the Average Housewife.

By Dorothy Dix



"Baby had chewed up one sleeve and was just beginning on the front gore of the skirt when I rescued both."

4 P. M.—Goodness me! Here it is 4 o'clock, and I can't see what I've done, although I've been busy every minute of the time. Gracious, but I'm thankful that I've got a husband to support me, for I'd never be able to earn my own living! Let me see. Where did I leave off, dear diary. Oh, yes, at 9 o'clock, when I'd just gotten John off to work, and the children to school, and the breakfast things washed up, and the house cleaned up, and the baby bathed, and the clothes sent to the laundress.

Then I glanced over the morning paper, because I can't let John's wife be ignorant, and while I was in the midst of it the baby crawled into the garbage can in her nice clean dress; and she had to be bathed and dressed all over again—that was the third time already for the day.

Baby Certainly Was Busy

Then I got out my sewing and started on Mary's new white frock, and just as I was in the midst of it ting-a-ling-ling-ling went the telephone bell. Up I jumped to answer it, and it was Mrs. Smithers, who kept me for five minutes while she expatiated on the souls of the heathens, and how she and a little stew, and some cookies, and had it on the table when Tommy and Mary came stamping down the hall. Tommy had been in a fight and was all bloody from a cut hand, and had torn his jacket, so I had to comfort him and help him clean up, and put arnica on his bruises and bind up his wounds, and mend his jacket, and sponge off the blood stains on it.

Mary's hair had become untidy, so I combed that over, and then I hustled them off to school again, and did up my lunch dishes, and straightened up the rooms again—children do bring in such a mess of dirt—and fixed the baby's bottle for her, and sang her to sleep.

"The Bells Interrupted Me"

Then I settled myself down to a steady afternoon's sewing, for Mary really must have that dress to wear to the school entertainment on Friday, and the baby has outgrown everything she has, and Tommy's out of blouses, and I must make John some pajamas—you can save 15 cents a pair if you buy the material right, when it's marked down, and I am positively asked for clothes myself.

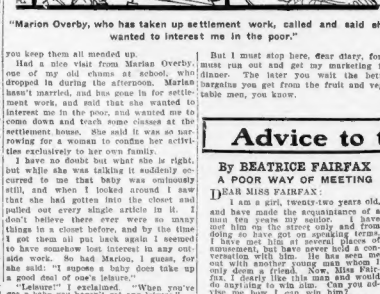
So I just made the sewing machine whirl, but every ten minutes it was the telephone, or the front door bell, or the dumbwaiter that I had to answer, so that I didn't get that dress more than half done before baby woke up and began to cry, and I had to dress her and take her out in her little go-cart. She isn't very strong, and the doctor said that she positively must have fresh air, so I gave her two or three spins around the block that freshened me up, too, for somehow, I don't know why I'm sure, I felt a little worn and jaded.

As soon as I got home I remembered that I promised John I would turn up the hems of his gray trousers where they were worn, and sponge and press them. He says that I can do it as nicely as a tailor, so I fixed them, and put fresh buttons on the coat and cleaned it with naphtha, and then, as I had gotten started at mending, I darned up all the stockings and patched some sheets and tablecloths. It is amazing how long you can make things last if you keep them all mended up.

Had a nice visit from Marian Overby, one of my old chums at school, who dropped in during the afternoon. Marian hasn't married, and has gone in for settlement work, and said that she wanted to interest me in the poor, and wanted me to come down and teach some classes at the settlement house. She said it was so narrowing for a woman to confine her activities exclusively to her own children.

I have no doubt but what she is right, but while she was talking it suddenly occurred to me that baby was ominously still, and when I looked around I saw that she had gotten into the closet and pulled out every single article in it. I don't believe there ever were so many things in a closet before, and by the time I got them all put back again I seemed to have somehow lost interest in any outside work. So had Marion, I guess, for she said: "I suppose a baby does take up a good deal of one's leisure."

"Leisure!" I exclaimed. "When you've got a baby you haven't got any leisure."



"Marion Overby, who has taken up settlement work, called and said she wanted to interest me in the poor."

But I must stop here, dear diary, for I must run and get my marketing for dinner. The later you wait the better bargains you get from the fruit and vegetable men, you know.

The Tired Business Man

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

FATIGUED in mind and body, by cark and care distressed,
I journey down to Revere to seek repose and rest.

I wandered through the districts where the people were at play,
And shared their simple pleasures for a fraction of a day.

I hurtled from a whirling disc and fractured both my arms;
I lost an ear in sharing in the twitching tickler's charms;

I caromed from an iron car that whisked around a curve,
And lost the major portion of my pneumogastric nerve;

And then, refreshed and vigorous, my pulses all athrob
With new-born life and energy, I went back on the job.

But soon the same old lassitude and weariness returned;
My friends became solicitous, my doctor looked concerned.

And specialists advised me that forthwith I ought to seek McSlugger's Sanatorium, and rest there for a week.

McSlugger came to welcome me when I got off the train,
He tripped me up, and knocked me down when I got up again.

Next day he blacked an eye or two, knocked out my best front teeth.
Repeating these things every day, until the strength of youth
Was bounding in my veins again, and next day I began

The routine of my business life, a very different man.

To-day somehow I hate to work; the figures promenade
Across the blue lined ledger page a nebulous parade.
The only interest that I have in toil is on the day
When I receive from her brass-bound cage, extends my weekly pay.

The struggling masses on the street oppress my aching brain,
I hardly have the strength to fight to get upon my train.

And once I wedge into a place, I sit in gloomy doubt
And wonder if it's worth the while to battle to get out.
I know that I'm in need of rest, I'd go to any length
To get it, but I realize I haven't got the strength.

Today's Best Story

THEY were men of exactly opposite types.

Briggs is a hard-natured, square-jawed individual—a retired police inspector. Wemys is the sort of man who believes in his fellows to the end.

"But surely even the most hardened criminals have some trace of a better nature" he urged.

Briggs coughed shortly, and said if they had he had not noticed it.

"Do you mean to say," said Wemys, "that you have never discovered a redeeming feature in an habitual criminal?"

"Yes, I did once," admitted Briggs.

"Ah, I knew it!" cried Wemys, triumphantly. "No one is all bad. What was it? Love of home? Kindness to animals? Love of children?"

"No," came the uncompromising reply; "it was a pawn ticket."

A CAREFUL SELECTION

A DISTINGUISHED cleric who has a perfect mania for practical joking and who is a very large man, of solemn aspect, went to a postoffice and asked the clerk if they kept stamps. The clerk, with a tolerant smile, admitted that they did, but was a little taken aback by the next question.

"What sorts do you keep?"

A Pink Satin Gown Lady and Taste in Dress

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN I was a little girl my chief ambition was to own a pink satin dress with a train.

My cousin and chief playmate used to declare that if she were a queen she would wash the windows in a pink satin dress.

That, to my mind, was a desecration of the grandeur of the pink satin creation and I used to say, "But if you were a queen you would not wash windows."

Her invariable answer was, "If I were a queen I could do anything I wanted to."

Not numbering many queens among my acquaintances, and having but a vague idea as to their ways, I never found a satisfactory answer to the argument.

I think I thought of a queen as a gorgeous creature who sat all day long on a golden throne, and wore a low-cut pink satin dress to the breakfast table, if it so pleased her.

I have lived to realise my dream of the pink satin gown with a train, and I have seen several queens, but I don't believe any of them ever washed the windows in a pink satin gown.

The few royal women I have seen were conspicuous for their extreme simplicity of dress and of bearing.

The Richest Are the Simplest

It is a noticeable fact that the higher you look in social circles the more simplicity you find as regards the dress and life of children.

The children of the very rich and fashionable people are fed and dressed sensibly and plainly.

Their meal hours are absolutely regular and their food, though perfectly cooked, is extremely simple.

Their bed hours are early and are rigidly adhered to.

The late Queen Victoria of England, who was as good a mother as she was a queen had all her daughters taught all the branches of domestic science. They were taught to sew, to cook and to be competent housekeepers. Their home life was as simple and natural as though they had been the children of parents living on a moderate salary.

I know that many girls have the idea that if they were rich and fashionable they would dress magnificently, with no thought of the cost, would wear all the jewelry they could pile on and would do exactly as they pleased.

Highest Art Is Simplicity

Well, my dears, I know more or less about the lives of some of the rich and fashionable people, and I can assure you that very few of them do just as they like, and that the ones who attend highest have the good taste and good sense to know that the highest art in dressing is simplicity, and, excepting on great and formal occasions, they wear but little jewelry.

Frequently you hear women discussing some leader in society, and I have heard probably declare that she is too busy socially to attend to her maternal duties.

That is usually a mistake, for many of the fashionable women are most excellent mothers.

Take Mrs. George Gould, for instance, with her brood of seven. She is a social leader and a very busy woman, yet every one knows that she is a wonderfully good and wise mother and that she has given personal supervision to every detail of her nursery and that her children and their welfare come before all else.

Simplicity and freedom from affectation are the only notes of good breeding. Vulgarity is always ostentatious and ready to thrust itself into the limelight of publicity.

None of us can be a queen, but all of us may arrive at the dignity of pink satin gowns and trains. The main thing to remember is that the most charming women are those who are the most simple in manner.

A pink satin gown will not make a lady, but kindheartedness and simplicity of manner will.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
A POOR WAY OF MEETING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl, twenty-two years old, and have made the acquaintance of a man ten years my senior. I have met him on the street only and from doing so have got on speaking terms. I have met him at several places of amusement, but have never held a conversation with him. He has seen me out with another young man whom I only deem a friend. Now, Miss Fairfax, I dearly like this man and would do anything to win him. Can you advise me how I can win him?

PERPLEXED.

YOU really do not know much about him, and you could not possibly be in love with a man whom you have never talked with. If he wishes to know you he should call on you properly at your home. Do not be foolish about him. Wait until you know him before you fall in love with him.

PARENTS MUST BE WATCHFUL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young lady about a year or so. At the time of our introduction I was employed as bookkeeper, commanding a weekly salary of $25. Her parents greatly objected to a salaried man, but preferred one in business for himself.

On that strength I gave up my position with the intention of going in business for myself, which, as you probably know, takes considerable time.

Having made all these important changes, the parents informed me that I had absolutely gone "out with" their daughter for the simple reason that I have as yet not opened a place of my own.

And also remarked that I should not attempt to go out with her until I have the above-mentioned requirements. They also state that it is a disgrace for a young lady to go out with a young man before they are engaged.

Now, Miss Fairfax, what I would like to know, do you think it was just of the parents to make this sudden change for the reasons stated above?

ANXIOUS.

YOU must remember that the parents are bound to do the best they can for their daughter, and naturally they do not wish to see her become engaged to a man who has no position. You were foolish to give up your good salary until you had something definite in view. Put all your energies into getting another position, and then go to the girl's parents and tell them you mean to have her and when you have saved enough you will go into some business of your own. If they see that you are in earnest they will probably relent and consent to an engagement.

QUITE PROPER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you kindly let me know if it is proper for a young girl in mourning for her mother to receive a diamond engagement ring?

A. B.

YES, it is quite proper. If the stone were a colored one it would be another matter, but diamonds being white, are worn when in mourning.

MARVELLOUS COINCIDENCE

WHILE trying an old woman on a charge of stealing firewood, a London magistrate checked the habit of thinking aloud unconsciously exclaimed: "Why, one fagot is as like another fagot as one egg is like another egg." The counsel defending the case heard the observation and repeated it to the jury, whereupon the judge cried "Stop! It is an interruption of evidence." This was the very thought that had passed through my mind, gentlemen (addressing the jury, acquit the prisoner."—London News.

SOCIETY

NEWPORTERS TO WITNESS PLAY BY AMATEURS

BY ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The medley of dances and tournaments, coming-out parties and receptions, dinners and luncheons at Newport to-day will scarcely be over before the whirl of to-morrow begins and carries the whole Summer contingent away in its pleasant mazes. For besides the elaborate dinner party which Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs are to give in the evening for their daughter, Miss Blanche Oelrichs, and the dance later the same night in her honor, everybody is looking forward to the long heralded and much anticipated English comedy, "The Liars," by Henry Arthur Jones, which is to be presented at the Freebody Park Theatre. VANITY OF WOMEN

Why are women vain? Nobody knows—not even they themselves. Psychologists have advanced various theories. One says that they dress to please man, another declares that they adorn their persons to arouse the envy of other women, and still another that they wear pretty clothes out of sheer self-admiration. Their slavery to the rough, the eyebrow pencil, the hair dye and store puffs is explained in the same fashion. The fact remains that if they so dress for each other, they prove at the same time themselves attractive to mere man.

Beauty and vanity, however, are matters only of location, and the woman with the most thoroughly acquired hipless hip effect, whose cheeks would pale the modest blush of the ripe peach, whose scarlet lips are the model of Cupid's bow, and whose black eyes after the limpid pools of light, Mussulman, who, with his own ideas of feminine pulchritude, would turn with renewed adoration to his lady of the embonpoint and the pantaloon.—Washington Post.

KEPT PRISONER BY AWFUL HUMOR

Whole Body Covered and Head So Bad She Could Not Comb Hair—Sight Affected—Neighbor Begged Her to Use Cuticura — It Cooled the Itching Flesh and

BROUGHT REST, SLEEP AND A PERFECT CURE

"Words cannot express the awful skin disease I suffered with. My whole body was covered with it. My head broke out so that I could not comb my hair. For a month or more I suffered with a terrible sore throat. When I should lie down at night my eyes would stick together and I would have to bathe them before opening them each morning. I scarcely could see for my eyes had failed me from the effect of the skin disease. I tried three doctors, but they gave me no relief and then I tried all kinds of things that I thought would do me good but I could find nothing. I was a perfect prisoner with the awful humor.

"One of my neighbors begged me to try the Cuticura Remedies and I made up my mind to try them but not thinking that I would ever be cured. I would take a hot bath with Cuticura Soap and then apply the Cuticura Ointment. I found relief in a few days and in a month you could scarcely see a spot on my face. I felt like a new person. When I first began to use the Cuticura Remedies they cooled the itching flesh and brought me real sleep and rest at night. I had suffered fully two years with the skin disease but now I am a well woman and in good health. I beg every skin sufferer to use the Cuticura Remedies. I cannot say too much for them, because I thought that I would never see well again. Mrs. Cordelia C. Pitts, Newborn, Ga., Nov. 24 and Dec. 21, '08."

THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK

BUT what was that dark shadow, in the bay? Drowsiveness had come that night, the fire which glided over the waters? Standing erect at the prow of a little boat which a fisherman was rowing, keeping rhythmic time with the two oars, I recognized the form of Larsan. The boat, silent, with its motionless statue at the prow, rowed completely around the peninsula. It passed beneath the windows of the Square Tower and then directed its course to the shores of the Pointe de Garibaldi.

When he had vanished I lowered my eyes and beheld two figures in the court of Charles the Bold. They were at the corner of the railing near the little door of the Square Tower. One of these forms—the taller—was engulfing the other and speaking in tones of ecstasy. The smaller attempted to break away—one would have said it wished to throw itself into the sea. And I heard the voice of Mme. Darsac say:

"Be careful. It is a gage of defiance which he has thrown down. You shall not leave me this evening."

And then came Rouletabille's voice as swearing:

"He must land upon the bank! Let me hurry to the bank."

"What will you do there?" moaned Mathilde.

"Whatever may be necessary."

And then Mathilde spoke again, and her voice was terrible to hear.

"I forbid you to touch that man!" And I heard no more.

The Strange Boatman

I descended to the court, where I found Rouletabille alone, seated upon the edge of the emblem. I spoke to him, but he did not answer. I felt no surprise, for this had often happened of late. I went on into the outer court, and I saw M. Darsac coming toward me, evidently in the greatest excitement. Before I came up to him he called out:

"Did you see him?"

"Yes, I saw him," I replied.

"And she—mr wife—do you know whether she saw him?"

"She saw him, too. She was with Rouletabille when he passed. What bravado the creature showed!"

Robert Darsac was infinitely sorrowful. In order to change the direction of his thoughts, I asked him a few questions regarding the Rance household. Here is the substance the information which I succeeded in extracting from him little by little:

After the trial at Versailles, Arthur Rance had returned to Philadelphia, and there, one evening, at a family dinner party, he had found himself seated beside a charming young girl, who had interested him at once by a display of interest in literature and art. Somewhat haughty in mien, yet gentle and melancholy, she at once recalled to the young man the heroines of Walter Scott, who he soon learned was her favorite author. For could this account little creature so quickly have impressed Arthur Rance, who had been madly in love with the majestic Mathilde?

Arthur Rance had upon that evening so far forgotten himself as to drink considerably more wine than was good for him. He never realized what his offense had been, but he knew that he must have committed some frightful blunder or breach of politeness, when Miss Edith in a low voice and with heightened color, requested him not to address her again. Upon the morrow, Arthur Rance went to call on the young lady and entreated her pardon, swearing that he would never permit wine to pass his lips again.

"The Hangman of the Sea"

Arthur Rance had already known for some time Miss Prescott's uncle, the shy old man who still bore among his friends the nickname of "Old Bob," which had been given him in his college days, and who was a celebrated for his adventures as an explorer as for his discoveries as a geologist. He seemed as gentle as a sheep, but he had fought many a tiger through the pampas of South America.

All these details were given me later by Arthur Rance himself. He had been one of "Old Bob's" pupils, but had not seen him in many years until he made the acquaintance of Miss Edith.

Miss Edith, upon the occasion when Arthur Rance had been presented to her, had seemed somewhat more melancholy than she usually was, because she had received disquieting news of her uncle. The letter for four years back had been absent on a trip to Patagonia. In his last letter, he had told his niece that he was ill, and that he feared that he should never see her again. She might be tempted to wonder why so tenderhearted a niece, under such circumstances, had not refrained from attending a dinner party, but she had afterward been glad that during her uncle's many absences from home, had no frequently received such communications from her uncle, but Miss Edith, seen him return in such perfect health that she could scarcely be blamed for not having remained at home to mourn that evening. Three months later, however, having received another letter, she suddenly resolved to go alone to South America and join her uncle. During those three months important events had transpired, Miss Edith and Arthur Rance had become fast friends of Arthur Rance, and when Miss Prescott departed for Patagonia, no one was astonished to find that "Old Bob's" old pupil was going to accompany her. If the engagement was not officially announced, it was because the pair preferred to wait for the return of the geologist. Miss Edith and Arthur Rance were met at St. Louis by the young woman's uncle. The three returned to Philadelphia, where the wedding took place. Miss Edith had never been in France, and Arthur Rance determined that their honeymoon should be spent there. And it was thus that they located in the neighborhood of Menton, not exactly in France, but a hundred meters from the frontier, in Italy, at Rochers Rouges.

* * * * * * *

The gong had sounded for dinner, and Arthur Rance was coming to look for us, so we repaired to "la Louve," in the lower hall of which we were to dine. When we were all assembled, Mme. Edith asked whether any of us had noticed a little boat which had made the circle of the fortress, and in which a man was standing erect. The man's strange attitude had struck her, she said. No one replied, and she added:

"Oh, I know who it is, for I know the fisherman who rowed the boat. He is a great friend of old Bob. They call him the 'hangman of the sea.' A pretty name, isn't it?"

WHAT SHE OVERHEARD

And How She Sized It All Up

"I'M going to tell you about it," said the girl who likes to talk. "It will give you light on a vexed question, and if the girls don't want to listen they needn't."

"I'm sure it's very good of you, said one of the young men, warily. The girl who likes to talk is prone to throw verbal bombs, and he had been hit by one or two of them.

"If you are going to say mean things about people, of course we will listen!" cheerfully said the girl on the window seat.

"It's always great fun for me to hear strangers talking when I can't see their faces and have to imagine them from their voices," said the girl who likes to talk. "And I could see these three girls—and I wasn't eavesdropping, because it was in a public place. They were all married and their respective husbands were Jack and Ben and Harry, and somehow they got started on the subject of men's spending money on girls. I don't know any topic that's been so torn to pieces unless it's the one about men's not making money allowances to their wives.

"The young woman with the English voice started it. She said she really was spoiled so far as going to the theatre in a street car was concerned. 'Not once,' said she, blithely, 'in all the time we were engaged did Harry ever take me to the theatre except in a carriage, and always there was supper afterward. And it was a supper, too, not any sandwich affair, but three or four courses, and always I had violets. Why, the money that man spent! The other girls used to turn purple with envy. I expect if he had saved all that money we could almost buy a house now!'

"'Yes,' said the young woman next her, 'but Harry probably wouldn't have had you to put in the house, you know.'

"'Of course,' the young woman agreed the girl with the English voice. 'Anyhow, if he hadn't squandered it on me he'd have squandered it some other way, so I might as well have had the fun of it. And when I saves a cent when he has just blushed to look at it.'

"'Jack didn't,' said the third young woman. 'Not a penny did he ever fill he got me on his hands. I tamed his gay spirit, and brought home to him the steady qualities of life. Why, when we were engaged he threw away money like a Niagara Falls pouring water. He had the yacht, you know, and when he took me he always took mother. And there was dinner downtown, and long cruises, and suppers and things—people used to say to me in a credulous way, "Why, Marie, the money it must cost that man!" But I didn't care. I certainly wasn't going to suggest to him that he save the money to get married on! That was his lookout, and if he didn't have sense enough to consider that, why, let him stay single! There were others so far as I was concerned. And I was having a good time!'

"'You know, said the middle girl, 'a man wants to get married, unless he wants to. Neither do we have to lay up our money on a girl unless he really yearns to do so. That's what I always reminded myself when Ben did something horribly extravagant for me and my conscience smote me. And then, if he hadn't done it for me he would have for some other girl!

"'You see,' she went on, 'no man ever thinks he is going to have a home and a wife and should provide for these mythical future emergencies. They just go gayly on in their spendthrift way, satisfied if they keep their bills paid, until they meet the particular girl, and suddenly one day they come out of their trance and murmur, "Why, bless me, I'm a married man! I'd better turn economical and save some money!" And little wifey has to make up for the extravagant bachelor days, and the money he wasted on other girls.'

"'Yes,' said the girl with the English voice, 'but think of the fun she had on the money some other girl's husband devoted to her pleasure in his bachelor days. It evens up. And I shut down on five pound boxes of candy after we were married. I'd rather have the money for lingerie waists. I'll take it in twenty-five cents' worth now.'"

The girl who likes to talk paused, and one of the listening men coughed.

"'Are we to infer,' he asked, meekly, 'that the girls really don't like to have money wasted on them? That we shouldn't do it? That it is unnecessary?'

"'I don't really know,' said the teller of the episode. 'My only suggestion, however, is that you use discretion in picking out your girl. If she's the one you marry eventually she'll relate to your extravagances with boastful pride and forgive you, but if it's some girl who preceded her in your affections and that you've told her about, look out! When you are aged and toothless she'll still be harping on what you could have done with that money you so sinfully wasted.'

SO SIMPLE.

Brown (to Sharpe, who prides himself on his spelling)—I bet I can give you a word you can't spell.

Sharpe (scornfully)—I bet you can't.

Brown—Very well. How do you spell need, meaning to need bread?

Sharpe—Pool! K-e-e-d, of course.

Brown—Wrong.

Sharpe—Wrong? Meaning to knead bread, you said, didn't you?

Brown—Yes.

Sharpe—Well, it's k-n-e-e-d, I tell you.

Brown—Not at all. You k-n-e-e-d dough, but you n-e-e-d bread. It's a simple word; sorry you couldn't spell it.

Forgotten Song

By ETHEL CLIFFORD.

HOW shall we meet that have been parted long?
I have forgot the burden of the song
We sang together very long ago.
How shall we meet that used to be so dear?
I have forgot the page that was so clear
In the last book whose name we did not know.

Have you forgotten, too? You tell me, no,
But can you sing the song of long ago,
Take up the measure and complete the air?
How strange it were if all the years that seem
To stand between us proved an empty dream,
And I could give you now what then I gave.

Alas! The rose, half-withered, droops and dies,
And tears that fall not still may blind the eyes;
The song unfinished hints until the end.
How shall we meet that parted long ago?
I have forgot the song we used to know.
And broken music none may ever mend.

What She Enjoyed.

SHE TOLD HIS FORTUNE AND HE TOLD HERS

THE girl broke the silence that had fallen upon the two persons in the rather formal room known as the "parlor."

"I want so much to read your palm," she said. "I've been studying palmistry for nearly a week, and I know just lots.

The young man, who seemed rather anxious than otherwise to submit his fate to her judgment, yielded his palm.

"My! what a nice big hand!" she cried admiringly. "It's better to have big hands than little—or is it little than big? Anyhow, you have a splendid line of life. It looks as though you might live to be ninety. Aren't you glad?"

"That depends," the young man said. "Is yours a long one?"

"You'll be very successful in the law," she went on. "And even make money in it."

"Looks as though you were going to have lots of trouble," she murmured. "Here's a line of influence that's awfully strong, but I don't see any divorce or anything."

"I don't see any wife yet," he said, gloomily. "How's anybody to get a divorce if he hasn't even got a wife?"

"Oh, but your going to get married," she assured him. "But, of course, a palmist can't tell what she looks like."

"If you could, nobody can."

"You have lots of bumps in your hand," she went on, unheeding. "It looks as if those that ought to be small are large, but I'm not sure. You are going abroad."

"Ask fate to make it a wedding trip," he said. "Go on."

"You've always been strong, but your life seem to indicate heart trouble and nervousness."

"That's right," he confessed. "One causes the other, but neither is incurable if given proper care."

"You've had lots of flirtations."

"There you know you're wrong."

"Well," she hesitated, "I'm not sure whether they're flirtations or only worries; but, anyhow, there they are."

"A flirtation is a worry."

"Well, maybe," she went on. "Jupiter, Mercury and the sun are all nice and big."

"I seem to possess all the planets. I suppose you think I want the earth?"

"You can make a success and you are going to die a long way from your birthplace."

"And all alone? Is there no one who will throw out the lifeline to me?"

"Don't be foolish, for you could be serious I wish I could remember whether or not it is a good thing to have sticking out long on the line of head."

"Something of the length of the dotted line, tell me more about the heart."

"It never go back," she said, definitely "I've finished with your heart."

"Really?" he asked, drawing near his hand. "What are you going to do with it—chuck it?"

"Please give me your hand again."

"No, I'd rather have yours," he said. "I know I could read you a first rate fortune. Let's see it."

Hastily she held her palm out, and he took it in his own.

"Those rings there under your middle finger show you are going to marry a lawyer," he said. "And that little line says there's no use your squirming, for I'm going to make you, no matter what you do. Mss!"

"I don't see you able to help it," she faltered. "I can't get it away."

"And don't you want it?"

"Not—not awfully much."

"Then go, go on out on the porch," he said softly. "I can tell fortunes better out there."

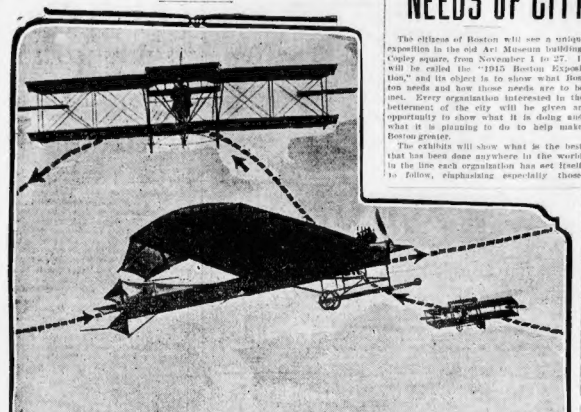
CURTISS' MARVELOUS AERIAL MANOEUVRES AMAZE ALL EUROPE



Sketch drawn from cabled description, showing how Glenn Curtiss, the American aviator, avoided a collision at Rheims, France. Another aeroplane was rushing toward him at right angles, and Curtiss just escaped a crash by sailing suddenly upward and over the other.

RHEIMS, France, Aug. 20.—Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, who thrilled a great crowd on Bethany Plain last night by skilfully avoiding a collision in mid-air, prepared for further trials to-day. Curtiss hopes to win the international aerial contest, which start on Sunday and last seven days.

"I am well pleased with my trial flights, but found it necessary to make some repairs upon the rudder of the machine," said Curtiss to-day. The flights made by the Americans in the Herring-Curtiss machine have astonished the international aviators, who are here, and they have set about with all the energy at their command overhauling their aeroplanes and otherwise making ready for severe work when the contests open.

There was some disappointment caused to-day when Curtiss announced that he would not enter the passenger-carrying contests. He thinks that M. Louis Bleriot, the renowned aviator, successfully negotiated the English Channel flight, cannot possibly be to encourage Curtiss in his effort to win beaten in that event. Curtiss made it plain that he did not want to take extra risks, and was

The crowds have grown so large about the aeroplanes on Bethany Plain that mounted gendarmes and dragoons are kept constantly on the scene.

When Mayor Accaplane mounted together and sauntered about, he spectators became excited. The Count Le Lambert, in a big Wright car, got away first. Then came M. Paul Tissandier in a flight hopeless. Curtiss, flapping slightly and carrying a cone before him by the wings, soared also and, clambered into the seat and started away in pursuit.

The near accident of the last night came when Curtiss saw M. Bonnevel approach in his monoplane. The American made a quick move, and the other aviator passed beneath him.

A veritable city has sprung up on Bethany Plain. To-day there was a massive procession of wagons bringing beds, provisions and luggage for the erection of sheds. Hundreds of people are on the ground and more are steadily arriving. Many Americans are here to encourage Curtiss in his effort to win the International cup for the United States.

STRENGTH CONTINUES IN THE REALTY MARKET

The sales in the real estate market continue to be strong and steady. Brokers are better satisfied with the results of this week than the preceding one. Houses and vacant land are selling well in this city and the suburbs.

The three-story brick house with basement, at No. 18 Morton street, off Faneuil, rated at $3,200, with 500 feet of land, valued at $1,400, has been conveyed by Lincoln Oliver et al to Henry H. Eides.

Frank A. Greenlaw has sold to Samuel Kaplan the three-story brick dwelling, No. 146 Union Park street, between Albany and Harrison avenue. The records say $7,000 on the house with 1,000 feet, valued at $1,700.

The three-story frame dwelling, No. 19 Hamburg street, between Harrison avenue and Myrtle street, with a value of $2,100 upon land and house with 500 feet, has been turned over to Samuel Bloch by Martin O'Grady et al.

The frame dwelling, No. 15 Tyler street, Dorchester, has been transferred by Harriet E. Short house to Lizzie E. Whitcher, valued at $2,400.

The vacant land on Elgin street near Norfolk, containing 11,000 feet of assessed for $1,400 has been sold by Edward A. Scott to Bridget J. Mayer et al.

The three-story frame building, No. 10 to 16 Bowdoin street, with 2,000 feet of land, has been conveyed under Sarah Malcolm to Jessie Richards. The records say $15,000 as the selling price.

Twenty-one thousand feet of land on Maple street, valued at $1,500 has been purchased by Frank E. Cruff from Catherine M. Walker.

A vacant lot of land assessed for $2,000 on Appleton street, near Waterhouse street, has been sold by Abraham Kleinman to Samuel Kaplan.

The same dwelling, No. 60 Bonair street, valued at $3,000 has been sold to Albert F. Mitchell by M. H. Hosmer.

Final papers have gone to record in the sale of the Kenny & Clark stable property on Massachusetts avenue, corner of Newbury street. This property comprises a five-story and basement brick building, assessed on a valuation of $95,000, and 14,000 square feet of land, assessed at $10,000, making a total assessment of $105,000. The consideration is $125,000. Mrs. Mary Estelle Trust conveyed to Frank J. Wheeler of the Maxwell Briscoe Motor Company, who will immediately remodel the building for offices, garage and automobile warerooms, shops, etc. Alexander S. Wheeler represented the purchaser and Henry W. savage the seller.

EXPOSITION TO EXPLAIN 1915 NEEDS OF CITY

The citizens of Boston will see a unique exposition in the old Art Museum building, Copley square, from October 1 to 27. It will be called the "1915 Boston Exposition," and its object is to show what Boston needs and how those needs are to be met. Every organization interested in the betterment of the city will be given an opportunity to show what it is doing and what it is planning to do to help make Boston greater.

The exhibits will show what is the best that has been done and what can be done, and in the line each organization has set itself to follow, emphasizing especially those things which the organization wants to duplicate or improve on here.

The exhibits will consist of photographs, models, moving pictures, stereopticon views, mechanical devices, maps, diagrams and plans, supplemented with demonstrations and lectures. Each exhibit will present a graphic picture that will draw and hold the attention of every casual observer. When the average citizen has seen this exposition, it is expected that he will understand vividly what is being done to improve the city and what more of the people's help is needed to carry through the work to the most successful results.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce has formally expressed its approval of the exposition project, and has voted to assume active charge of the undertaking. As all organizations and interest in showing what other cities have done and are doing in certain lines, thus, the exhibit committee has secured the co-operation of a number of important cities, especially shown in New York and Washington.

Famous Models Shown.

It has also secured from the Library of Congress the exhibit of the United States' famous set of models by Burnham for the replanning of Washington. It is trying to secure similar displays from Chicago, San Francisco, New York and Cleveland. Included in the material already secured are plans, maps, photographs, etc., of the most European cities. The Social Ethics Museum, located at Hull House, and the Public Health exhibit the German government presented to it. The remarkable dock developments of Hamburg and Manchester, England, will also be shown.

The Boston Elevated Railway will show the growth of transportation service, and probably a comprehensive scheme for future development. The New England Telephone & Telegraph Company will exhibit a model exchange and show how cities are connected. There will also be maps of the main lines between the different cities and towns. The Boston Consolidated Gas Company, and probably the Edison Company, also, will have a graphic history of lighting and models of how the lighting of the future will be done. The Metropolitan Improvement Association will have maps and models of interesting points in Boston. It is expected that all the departments of the city government, and the Finance Commission, and, things, the Board of Health will demonstrate the methods of milk inspection.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, August 20.—The most important conference that the Morgan-Harriman pool has produced this season is due primarily to the speculation in Union Pacific preferred. Harriman undoubtedly feels that his good name is being injured by the reports that he will ignore the charter and bylaws of the company and let Union Pacific preferred share in the profits arising out of investments of Union Pacific. It was in order to end the feverish speculation that decision was reached to pay only regular dividends on Union Pacific and Southern Pacific at the forthcoming meetings. A short interest was wanted in the market, and the object of the manipulators has been accomplished quickly.

$ $ $

This bull campaign is founded on the Aldrich law, the late panic and the present great crops. Neither Harriman nor Morgan can stop it.

$ $ $

The United States is producing copper metal at a greater rate than ever before in its history. The United States Government at Washington says that record crops will be harvested. Reputable steel manufacturers say orders are being received for business at a record rate. Bankers say money was never so abundant, and the United States Government has $500,000,000 of Aldrich money printed and piled up at Washington ready to issue if needed. The greatest railroad combination in the history of the world has been formed and will soon be announced. Never before in the history of the world was there such a complete all-round sense of war and warlike feeling—space writers notwithstanding. Never before were prices so high for food and clothing in America.

$ $ $

The stock market has been high in its time, but low in comparison with every other thing that is bought and sold in the United States. The time will come, of course, when panic must prevail as a result of the Aldrich law, but fundamental conditions of conditions are not going to come forty-eight hours after the leader of a great Wall street party passes the tip around that he would like to see a larger short interest in the market, and then a quick way to get it would be to play on Harriman's health and destroy the value of the dividends on Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Quoting from this column of August 17: "Now and then somebody comes along with something that is dark. Harriman may step in all of a heap with a little purge. He could put a short interest more quickly by declaring only regular dividends on Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. As Harriman usually does things the hard way, it is practically safe to say that he knows that no extra dividends will be announced for the forthcoming year of those two companies."

$ $ $

That the average level of stock prices is too high will be disputed in some of the money centres, but not in Wall street. The country's progress justifies a level higher and the increased production of gold is an important factor in the case. It would be difficult to say that the dividends, the value of the gold factor, but some bankers think that as compared with three years ago the market of nearly 10 per cent should be made for it in security prices.

$ $ $

Prices may recede, but the country will continue to grow; and the greater the recession the greater will be the opportunity for forcing to restore the equilibrium of prices and values. Conservatism in any business is still the keynote of Wall Street sentiment, and by Wall Street is meant the opinion of those who even incidentally operate in the security market. There may be expectation of a reaction, but nowhere is there any serious doubt that we are still in a constructive period, or that prices will not in the next year or two reach a level much higher than that of to-day.

$ $ $

There is, of course, no gainsaying the fact that since the panic time the prices of some stocks have advanced and for a year relatively much greater than have those of others. There are reasons innumerable why these should have advanced in this way, rather than that the rise should have been uniform. It would be impossible to give a great many other strong reasons why one stock should advance relatively more than another, as compared with the low prices of the panic, and why it follows that it is by no means unlikely that stocks because a stock has doubled, trebled or quadrupled its price the public speculation is now dangerously high. The stock of a badly managed company which has advanced but little may be a far more dangerous speculation than the other kind.

$ $ $

Possibly E. H. Harriman's illness will continue to be a factor in the stock market, but not the general market becomes less susceptible to the fluctuations of Union Pacific, for there is much promise that railway involved. To capital abroad as well as here, Harriman represents the railroad, but railroads, American railroads, in a sense never before typified the masters of transportation.

Harriman for some time may create in and suspense, to engender uneasiness among promoters and bull speculators, but the real investor, after the shaking reports, disseminated by unscrupulous persons, will come to realize that it is unwise to assume that in event of Harriman's death finance would remain practically unaffected.

A decade ago Roswell P. Flower was very active in a bull market that had ensued upon several years of depression. Flower's activity was particularly conspicuous. There were others in the campaign at least equally influential, for Flower could not make money single-handed. But on the announcement of Flower's death the market broke 5 to 8 points, active stocks tumbled from 3 to 15 points.

Flower, compared to Harriman, was a pigmy in industrial or market importance, but the world knew he was rich. He had some stock in the old Rock Island Railway, but he was a subordinate factor in the board of directors. In Europe he was practically unknown. Harriman to-day is the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and the Illinois Central railroads, and is paramount in the New York Central, the Erie and several lesser systems. Save the Hill lines there is scarcely a railroad in the west but feels potential influence. Industrial individualism has no record of sweeping power as Harriman wields. That power is the deeper and more widespread in that Harriman's proprietary interest in these innumerable corporations is relatively small. He holds his position by virtue of the securities holders' confidence in him, in his ability.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; SELLING PUTS STOCKS DOWN

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Gains averaging a point were scored by the standard railroad and industrial shares at the opening of the stock market to-day, and for a time it looked as though the rapid that was in evidence at the close of the market yesterday had been stopped. The tape seemed to indicate that the shorts were covering their outstanding commitments, but after the first few minutes of the session heavy selling orders came on the market from all parts of town, and, under their pressure, the market again lost its buoyancy.

Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central and Steel were the leaders in the downward movement.

All the gains were wiped out and losses ranging from one to three points were scored before the end of the first half hour. Other stocks to show losses were St. Paul, Smelters, Atchison, Pennsylvania and Reading.

SOUTH AMERICAN SITUATION SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The State Department is alarmed over the aspect which the three-cornered South American boundary dispute, involving the Argentine Republic, Peru and Bolivia, has suddenly developed. News of the attitude of Bolivia relative to the ultimatum sent by Peru to President Villazon, the new Bolivian executive, in which adherence to and recognition of the Argentine arbitral boundary award is demanded, is awaited with keen anxiety. The dispute is of long standing and the last arbitral award, made by Argentine, is against Bolivia.

DECISION AGAINST BALDWIN ESTATE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—A claim of $1,320,000 against the estate of the late E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, the turfman, based on a note held by the Hibernia Loan Society of San Francisco, and secured by a trust deed covering all of Baldwin's California real estate, has been allowed by Judge Wilbur in the local court.

LORD STRATHCONA HERE FOR A TRIP

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada, and his granddaughter, Miss Frances and Donald Smith's party of London, arrived here from Canada to-day, en route for Montreal and Banff, Vancouver. They will return to England in October. Lord Strathcona talked enthusiastically of the great growth in farming in northern Canada.

MINING LIST HOLDS FIRM

STATE STREET, Aug. 20.—Notwithstanding the weakness and sharp decline in the New York list, mining shares stood up wonderfully well this forenoon. The general list was weak, due to the free selling, but few mining stocks were offered so active was the New York market that the tape was some minutes behind the actual market.

Manipulation entered into the dealings of U. S. Smelting and the price ran off almost a point to 52¾, but it quickly came back to 53⅛ again. Lake Copper showed buoyancy after the opening hour and after touching 26 rallied to 26⅜.

Amalgamated broke over a point to 83⅜ but recovered fractionally. Utah Copper and Union Pacific both broke, the former to 73⅜, and the latter to 204, but also recoveries followed. American Telephone yielded to 139⅝ on moderate transaction. Curb trading was of light proportions and prices were generally heavy. Butte State Gas sported to 60 cents and Chartiers was allowed to fall to 20 cents. Island Coal was quiet at 10@10⅛, and First National was active and slightly weak.

SUSPICIOUS FIRE IN SOUTH BOSTON

The police are now investigating a fire which broke out at 7 o'clock on the second floor of the three-story wooden tenement at No. 220 Athens street, South Boston. The damage was only $100, but the police found in a closet a straw mattress which had been carefully destroyed. Captain Hall of Station 6 said there were many suspicious circumstances. The second and third floors are unoccupied.

LATEST IN TAXICABS.

Cabriolet taxicabs are now in operation in Boston. The Cabriolet Taxicab Motor Cab Company of Park square have a stand at the Hotel Brewster. They are modeled on the quaint and elegant lines of the old cabriolet, with some superb examples of victoria and coupe thrown in. They were ordered from Buffalo by Manager W. S. Barnhart of the Yale Motor Cab Company and Manager Thomas Boyles of the Hotel Brewster, who went to Buffalo in search of something in the taxicab line out of the ordinary. They are particularly adapted to shopping, pleasure driving and similar light driving purposes.

Comparison of Market Values of Certain Low Grade Copper Properties with Present Market Value of Rhode Island Coal Property

In the mining and smelting of low grade copper ores, yielding 1 3-4% to 2 1-2% copper, the net result would be 35 to 50 pounds copper per ton of ore mined. Assuming 50 pounds as an average return, if it should cost 9 cents per pound for all expenses in connection with mining and marketing the copper, the cost would be $4.50 per ton of copper ore sent to smelter—and if sold at 13 cents per pound, it would net the company 4 cents per pound, on 50 pounds copper—$2.00 per ton of ore. If the price of copper was 15 cents per pound, the copper company would net $3.00 per ton on its ore mined.

Turn now to Rhode Island Coal Company. The seams of coal are of more than the average width and, what is peculiar in seams of anthracite coal, are entirely free from slate or rock. It is estimated by experienced miners that this coal can be mined at a cost of not exceeding $1.25, and for each additional per ton will cover all surface expenses, cost of selling, etc., or a total of $2.00 per ton loaded on cars. The cost of transportation to Fall River, Providence, Taunton and places within this zone is 50 cents per ton of 2240 pounds, enabling the company to place its product in these places at a cost of $2.50 per ton of 2240 pounds. Admitting that the coal is of a satisfactory quality, it will bring in the market certainly $4.50 per ton, which would be the same net profit per ton of coal as in a ton of 2 1-2% copper ore, with copper at 13 cents per pound. But the coal would probably bring in these places not less than $5.50 per gross ton, a net profit of $3.00 per ton, equalling the profit on 2 1-2% copper ore, with copper selling at 15 cents per pound.

The following copper figures are taken from the columns of the Boston News Bureau of August 17th, 1909:

Company.	Market Value.	Estimated tons of ore.	Given an equal number of tons of coal in the R. I. Coal Co.'s mines, Rhode Island Coal Stock would sell for—
Gila	$5,747,000	2,000,000	$5,747,000	or	$14.35 per share
Inspiration	7,500,000	3,000,000	7,500,000	or	18.75 per share
Cumberland-Ely	9,587,000	5,000,000	9,587,000	or	23.96 per share
Giroux	13,600,000	8,000,000	13,600,000	or	34.00 per share
Utino	5,687,000	9,000,000	5,687,000	or	14.21 per share
Miami	9,885,000	14,000,000	9,885,000	or	24.71 per share
	$52,004,000	41,000,000	$52,004,000	or	$130.00 per share

On the property of the Rhode Island Company, two seams of coal have been worked in a small way, one of the seams having been followed to a depth of 1500 feet. It is believed that these two seams extend substantially over all the 4000 acres of the company's property, in which case the quantity of coal in these two seams alone is more than double the estimated ore of all the above named copper properties.

In addition, another seam has recently been found, about three-fourths of a mile from the present working, of a thickness of sixteen feet, as reported by the foreman in charge of one of the diamond drills.

Professor Shaler says of the coal in the Narragansett basin, of which this is believed to be the centre:

"Although there is no basis of reckoning the quantity with any degree of accuracy, there can be little doubt that it is to be estimated by the hundred million tons."

Three diamond drills are now at work on the property of the company. In the course of a few months it will be possible to estimate the quantity with an absolute "degree of accuracy."

Quoting further from the Boston News Bureau of August 17th:

"In regard to the companies which are not yet producing, three of them, the Ray Consolidated, Miami and Ohio, are building concentrating mills which it is estimated will be producing copper at the rate of 40,000,000, 28,000,000 and 14,000,000 pounds per year respectively, beginning operations within the next 10 months. It is regarded as likely that within the next year the rest of these companies will be erecting reduction plants, as developments at the different properties fully warrant such an action."

The Rhode Island Coal Company confidently expect to be mining and shipping coal by the first of January, 1910, at the rate of 100 tons per day; in February, 200 tons per day; and so on, increasing in about this proportion steadily, month to month, for the next two or three years.

"Unto Every One That Hath Shall Be Given"

Yes, and Heaven Help Those That Haven't. For Truly It Is Said, "From Him That Hath Not Shall Be Taken Away, Even That Which He Hath"

Here are pictures of two classes of citizens, pictures drawn by Arthur Young, copyrighted by and reproduced from Puck. Here you see one group of citizens:

These healthy looking human beings are going away for "their health." They need rest, change of air and diet, sunshine and the ozone of the mountains.

The next picture is different, although it is a picture of human beings of the same flesh, blood and bones, living in the same city, under the same laws. IN THE SAME GLORIOUS REPUBLIC WITH OPPORTUNITIES FOR ALL AND CHARITY UNLIMITED.

Here you see human beings that ARE NOT GOING AWAY FOR THEIR HEALTH. They also, quite possibly, need change of air and of diet. Perhaps the ozone of the mountains would do them good, but they are going to get along without those things.

"Unto every one that hath shall be given, but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath." Very sad, but very true. These pictures would prove the truth of the text, if it needed any proving.

Those that HAVE, in the top picture, will have more. They are fat, more fat will be given to them. They are healthy and prosperous, more health and prosperity will be given to them.

In the other picture those that have NOT will soon have taken away from them even that which they have. For they still have skin and bones, and a life inside of the skin and bones. And in the case of a good many those remaining possessions will soon disappear.

The baby lying on its mother's lap on the doorstep in a hot, dusty street will probably not last long.

These are interesting pictures, and they are useful pictures, when human beings look at them in the right way.

It does no good to get angry or excited about men's selfishness or about the miseries of the poor. You cannot help getting angry, perhaps, but that does no good. The thing to do is to think about it earnestly, and feel about it earnestly, AND VOTE ABOUT IT EARNESTLY, every time you get the chance.

The fat people at the top are not to blame. They are perfectly right to get out of the heat if they can. The fat father and the fat mother OUGHT to take their fat babies to the mountains and get them fatter, if they want them fatter. This fat man is doing as well as he can by his own, and by himself, and that is about all that is now expected of average human beings.

In time to come, let us hope, intelligent government, and the kindness of the race as a whole, will do for the poor, thin children what this fat father now does for his individual little group.

Work to bring forward the day when the power of the entire people will protect the weak and the sick and the miserable. But do not waste your energy denouncing the successful man who is doing as well as he can. He is, at least, showing the way, building the railroads to the mountain, cutting out the underbrush.

IF THE PEOPLE WILL USE THEIR BRAINS AND THEIR VOTES IN DAYS TO COME, AND NOT SO FAR DISTANT, those that now stay at home and have taken away even that which they have will use those railroads and see those mountains, and also join the ranks of the happy and the prosperous.

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE —ON— ARMAMENT AND REAL CHARACTER

Written for the AMERICAN

By DR. C. H. PARKHURST

(Now traveling in Europe.)

IT is in order to wonder whether a nation like our own would not be showing more respect for itself if it depended for its security more upon the protection afforded by its own character and less upon the artificial defences of armies and battleships.

The prevailing tendency toward military equipment, both at home and abroad, might seem to render such a suggestion visionary; but at the same time there is something to it that is worth considering.

It is certain that sooner or later the growing expenditure for armies and navies will receive a check. Such check may come from fear of national bankruptcy, or it may come, as was recently suggested by an English statesman, by the people taking the thing in their own hands and rising in one grand revolt against the burden of taxation which present war expenditures necessitate. But in one way or another it is going to come. The only question is, What is to be the method of its coming?

Some one nation will take the initiative, and the nation best qualified to do that will be the one whose past history has been freest from international complications and whose dealings with other nations have contained least that can be alleged as ground for retaliation.

Grounds for Self-Respect Will Serve as a Wall of Protection

Since we became an independent people we have minded pretty closely our own business. We have dealt honestly by the world, and have earned the world's respect, and we owe to ourselves a goodly measure of self-respect.

The nation that has a just respect for itself has a right to assume that the qualities which are the ground of that self-respect will be recognized elsewhere at their true worth and serve to a certain extent as a wall of protection against molestation from outside.

This can be safely said notwithstanding the fact that nations, like individuals, are ambitious. Nations will steal when they have the chance. There are national pickpockets, and national bullies, and national brigands. Yet the man who is virtuous enough to be able to take an honest pride in his virtue and therefore feels that he is righteously exempt from the affronts that meaner men are liable to will find that others are very largely disposed to let him alone. Thieves are a great deal more likely to go armed than honest men. A man of honor appreciates the protective quality that inheres in his honor.

Militarism Shows Distrust and Lack of Defensive Power.

A Salvation Army girl can walk alone on a street in New York by day or by night and not be molested. As soon as she begins to distrust the protecting power of her virtue she would begin to be in danger.

Tolstoy is not as afraid of the Czar as the Czar is of him. Were Tolstoy to hire a bodyguard the Czar would clap him into St. Peter and St. Paul. There is involved in all this a principle that our own nation can afford to take account of, and it ought to. It would be for its own interest and the world's interest if it were.

To be seized with a spasm of militarism as we seem just now to be, implies not only a distrust of other nations, but a lack of that conscious dignity and worth which are as certain an element of peace as are powder and shot, soldiers and gunboats. It is a confession that our national character has that lack of invulnerability that requires for its security a heavy coating of steel; and when our war fleet went around the world it was to show the world how heavily cloaked with steel our national vulnerability is.

Conciliation Will Do Away with Brutality and Savagery.

It is to be wished that when our late President was manoeuvring to awe the nations with our material means of defence he had used the great influence of his outstanch personal character to impress upon his own people and other peoples with the significance of character as an asset, with the national dishonor involved in dealing otherwise than considerately and reverently with all that makes out the true worth and dignity of associate peoples, and with the intrinsic savagery and brutality that are continue to be a feature of the world's history so long as civilized means of adjustment and conciliation are replaced by those in vogue with the dog and the Hottentot.

The Income Tax in Bombiloo

By WEX JONES

IN Bombiloo the beautiful, where life was full of ease,
And the only sound of discontent was the trade wind in the trees,
They had to have some money to run the gov-ern-ment,
So on each imported cocoanut they charged the folks a cent,
Which made the poor consumers mad, because the cocoanut
Was an absolute necessity in every palm leaf hut,
Where they used the milk for drinking, and the shell for making spoons,
And the thought of paying more for it made sober people loons.

So when the people made their kick, Chief Bangaroo was there,
And said that such a tariff was very far from fair,
He called up all his councillors and said, "Let us revise
This tariff which is hateful in our loyal subjects' eyes."
So the councillors got busy, and when they all got through
They boosted up the cocoanuts from one cent unto two.
When Bangaroo got nervous and declared the people would Demolish all the Government on being done so good.

The councillors they laughed at him and said he was a chump
To let necessities be taxed by so much at a jump.
So Bangaroo got on the job and said, "We'll make 'em pay
For everything they drink or eat through every livelong day."
So all the Bombilooloos, when they gathered round the bar,
Said, "We don't know why we're paying, but we do know that we are."
And Bangaroo grew popular because the tax was laid
Not upon what his people got, but upon what they paid

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

ALL day long Ma has been making fun of Pa. He had his fortune told last nite by a lady which reads pure hands for fifty (50) cents. There was lots of ladies & gents setting on the porch of the hotel wen the lady told Pa's fortune. They all herd every word.

The first one wich had his fortune told on the poarch was a man named Karl. The lady took his hand & sed I see that you are going to live to a ripe old age, about 80. Fine, sed Karl, how long is my wife going to live? She will die a year or so before you do, sed the lady. Very well, sed Karl, then I will drop my life insurance wen the next payment comes due.

Yure palm, the lady sed to Karl, is a most remarkabel palm. It is the palm of a deep thinker. Ha Ha, sed Pa, you are right. Karl certingly has to do sum deep thinking sumtimes wen he is on his way hoam to meet his wife. Yure palm, the lady sed, is the palm of one (1) who has seen much of the world. I see many trials & sufferings ahed for you, but in the end right will triumf, & you will end yure days happily. A fat man will cum into yure life, the lady sed, in fack is in yure life now. He will try to get you into the old swift ways of yure yuth, but yure luving wife will foil him.

I am the only fat man here, sed Pa, I hoap you doan't mean me. I am not saying who I mean, sed the lady. Then she touch the torture of Ma & sum other values, & they was all fine fortunes.

Palmistry is a grate art, sed Pa, & has been a grate art since the days of the old Greeks. I have every faith in it, & think I will have my own fortune told now.

Then the lady took Pa's hand & looked at it a long time, & then she sed For mercy's sake! This is a terribul palm! What is the matter with this palm? sed Pa. He looked kind of red in the face. I fear you have been a hard-headed drinker in yure time, sed the lady, judging from the glassy look of yure palm.

I am sorry to say, the lady told Pa, that youre palm shows very little in your past life that wud do you any good if you were to run for office. It shows that at a early age you broke away from yure parents & friends, & that from that time on you roamed from coast to coast, one of the wildest of all wild revelers. How shocking! sed one (1) of the ladies on the poarch.

Cut out all that ancient history, sed Pa, & tell moar of the ideel life I am leading at present, & about my future. How does the future look, better than the past, hoop, sed Pa.

Very dark, sed the lady. Well, sed Pa, of all the killjoys I ever listened to, you are the worst. You must have been born in the Dismal Swump, sed Pa. I am sorry, sed the lady, but I only tell what I know & what I see. You are to marry agenn. I am? sed Pa. You are, sed the lady.

Then the future is indeed dark, sed Pa. Let go of my hand.

Little Editorials by the People

SCORES "WAR GAME"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

What's this "war" all about, anyway? It's going to cost the government a lot of good money at a time when the Federal Government is trying to secure economy in every department, and is even forced to ask for a corporation and income tax to get enough money to run the government departments. Isn't this "war" a pretty poor investment, anything considered? The soldiers get half-starved and half-frozen marching around in the rain and the mud trying to carry out some "problem" or other. What do these war "problems" amount to? Teach the science of war, you say. Bosh! Some of the greatest and most brilliant victories in military history have been "impossible" and contrary to the theories of the war experts.
